Buttle Held Grandest Memorial To War Dead; Nature Best Architect

(Following a recent visit to Buttle Lake, Air Marshal Sir Philip Livingston of Duncan, a native of Vancouver Island, has written a letter to The Times on the current controversy. Sir Philip's interesting comments are being published in three instalments of which the following is the second.)

By AIR MARSHAL SIR PHILIP LIVINGSTON, KBE, CB, AFC, FRCS
Late Medical Director-General, Royal Air Force

Friends sometimes ask me why I came back to this Island on the occasion of my retirement after 32 years of service in the RAF and two years of the Kaiser's War in the RNVR and the younger days at Cambridge and the London Hospital.

The answer is simple. I came back because the call of this Island was clear and compelling.

If a man has any sentiment in him at all, and may he who has not be forgiven, he cannot go through the training and experiences that are part of a full and exacting career in medicine and remain immune from the impact of events that constitute his daily life. It is inevitable that they leave their mark upon him.

If, to all this, are added the sights and sounds encountered during two long wars, a time is reached when men crave for peace; not peace in which to forget, because to forget is impossible, but peace in which to think.

Peaceful Scene Good for the Mind

Hence the help that is afforded by the loveliness of quiet places, in the seclusion of the hills, at a lake's side, or by chattering streams. It is good for the mind.

It is the answer to a prayer.

Just a year ago I rested on the shore of Buttle Lake, where the sand builds up at the mouth of Wolf River. In the high distance was a snow clad peak, while at my feet the waters of the lake lapped quietly.

For a space I was not there in mind: my thoughts were on the chaps who, through their brave endeavors and their sacrifices had gained me my seclusion and my security.

Many, very many of them from Fighter Command and Bomber Command, flew away on their missions by day and by night, never to return. "Day after day, night after night for nearly six years their battle endured," and they were young, very young.

I remember a pilot of the RCAF who lay mortally wounded in one of the RAF hospitals in England that I attended in my special capacity—the front of his chest had been blown away by an enemy cannon shell and his heart lay exposed so that its beating could be seen. For three months he lay there while a chest surgeon of world reputation endeavored to eliminate the infection which had complicated his wound, so that a closure could be attempted.

He lay there a living sacrifice, quietly and uncomplaining.

Died That We Might Live in Freedom

He died that we might live in freedom and in peace.

If, on the shore of Buttle Lake I retraced these songs, not in a spirit of sadness but of homage, what then could this have implied, not to me alone, but to us all? Here was a memorial, the grandest that we of this Island possess, a place where each may lay aside his armor and rest and know that sacrifice and suffering are not in vain, and because the tall trees stand as sentinels guarding his reverie he can feel that his more cherished moments are secure from the world outside.

Of the many memorials, faithful in their design, to the honor of youth no longer by our side, there is one on the Assam Burma border on which these words are inscribed:

"For your tomorrow we gave our today."

Can there be wonder that I stand in revolt at the sacrifice of a place, the beauty of which soothes the stings of life and invites the soul to dream! Why cannot this be our proud memorial? What better architect than nature for such a purpose?

Bank Bandit Suspect Caught With $1,600

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 27-year-old ex-convict was arrested by police late Thursday in connection with the Wednesday holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia in which three bandits escaped with $9,000.

The suspect had $1,600 in his possession.

Police were still combing the city for the other two members of the fast-working team which held the staff of the bank and several customers at gunpoint, then fled with their loot in a two-minute operation.

All three were unmasked but two wore false moustaches and one, sunglasses.

The suspect arrested was to face an identification lineup later today.

VANCOUVER (CP) — S. R. Coard, pensioner who lost $100 during a bank holdup here Wednesday, will get it back.

Manager R. D. Dunn of the Kitsilano branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said the bandits snatched Mr. Coard's $100 before he left the wicket after cashing his cheque.

B.C. Man Killed While Climbing Peak Near Banff

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A young climber is the 10th victim claimed this year by the Canadian Rockies.

Frank Kosh, 23, of Vancouver, was found dead Thursday at the 8,000-foot level of Mount Blaine and a 10-man party led by a mountaineering park warden set out today to bring in the body.

The death followed the mid-July avalanche on Mount Temple in which seven teen-ager climbers from the U.S. lost their lives.

RCMP said Kosh set out Wednesday with two other Vancouverites, Pat Duffy and Dave Kennedy, and Gerry Johnston of the Banff national park warden service.

CROSSWORD NOW $450 —'APED' FOOLED FANS

Times Crossword puzzlers try hard enough and their number grows week by week, but the combination of correct answers continues to elude them. Result, of course, is more cash for the contestant who eventually does win.

Total prize for the puzzle carried this week on page 24 today is $450.

"Aped" was a word that escaped most entrants last week, "aged" being the wrong answer commonly given. "If ——, a man may be a little irritable" was the clue given. Being "aped" is a reasonable cause for irritation. It is mental and physical ill health that causes irritation rather than age.

"Far" proved another stumbling block, the popular answer being "fat."

Explanation to other difficult clues and complete answer to last week's puzzle will be found on page 24.

Anti-Red Outbursts Bring Federal Apology

New Demonstrations Against Russians Signal Start of Ontario Farm Tour

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Russia's touring farm experts ran into another anti-Communist outburst Thursday night as cries of "bandits" and "murderers" greeted them at London's Crumlin airport. The chief federal conducting officer, S. J. Chagnon, has made a public apology.

Mr. Chagnon, the assistant deputy agriculture minister, told a press conference he is very embarrassed by what has taken place and on behalf of the Canadian government wants to apologize.

Soviet officials have said privately the Russian government would not have allowed such incidents in the Soviet.

After being hustled in and out of Winnipeg to avoid clashes with anti-Reds, the Russians arrived here about 8.20 p.m. A local "Friends of Russia" group presented Soviet delegation leader Vladimiar Matskevich with a bouquet of flowers at the airport when suddenly the outburst began.

"FLOWERS FOR GRAVES"

"Put the flowers on the Siberian graves of those you have murdered," cried Anton Liepins, a construction worker of Latvian origin.

RCMP, provincial and local police stood guard at Chatham when a chartered bus carrying the nine Russian farm experts stopped briefly and then made its way to the nearby farm of Lawrence Kerr. There were no demonstrations.

Ratepayers Fighting Horse Racing Plan Buy Tract at Sale

LEGAL BATTLE LOOMS

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A showdown legal fight between Victoria City and Saanich over the controversial Beaver Lake property proposed for a race track site was in the making today when Saanich, in a surprise move, put the 80-acre tract up for tax sale.

It was purchased for $3,450 by Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association, an organization formed to fight the city's proposal to lease the area for racetrack purposes.

The city, which has held the property for years, has never paid taxes on it and disputes the right of Saanich to collect them.

A city hall spokesman said Victoria will move to have the tax sale set aside. In any event, if the tax sale were held to be legal, the city would have a year in which to redeem the property.

It can do this by paying all back taxes, plus six per cent interest.

Saanich has always claimed that the property is taxable because it is situated within the municipal boundaries.

Stan Green, municipal assessor and collector, put the property for tax sale today because taxes have not been paid during the last three years. The tax arrears amount to $700.96.

The successful bid was placed by Fred Jeune, an officer of the ratepayers' association, who said the aim of his organization was still to have the land developed as a park. There was spirited bidding.

$40,000 OFFER

Saanich council earlier this year offered to purchase the property from the city for $40,000 and to develop it as an inter-municipal park. The city has not yet made a reply to the council's offer.

John Tribe, municipal clerk, said the city will be notified that the land has been sold for arrears in taxes.

"After that it is up to the city," he said. They can either pay it or take the matter to the courts.

The city has held the land under provincial statute since before 1912 as a watershed area. But the city claim under the statute it is not liable for land taxes.

Quits PUC

D. K. Penfold, member of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission, has resigned from office, it was announced by Premier W. A. C. Bennett today. He is to be succeeded by Albert B. Jackson, BA, former superintendent of the motor carrier branch of the PUC, since September, 1953.

Kaiser Asks More Time on Dam Survey

Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation has asked the provincial government for a six to eight-month extension of the deadline for completion of the firm's surveys for the controversial Kaiser Dam.

This was revealed today by Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers, who said the government will agree to the extension.

Mr. Sommers said Kaiser "maintains they can't complete the engineering data required," by the original deadline of Sept. 1.

The new move is the second extension granted Kaiser.

Arbitration Asked

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Suggestion that the two disputing parties go to arbitration to settle basic rate of wages was put forward today by A. R. Garrish, BCFGA president, today as the strike of valley packinghouse workers went into its ninth day.

Woman, 22, Jailed Six Years; Was Caught in Vancouver Drugnet

VANCOUVER (CP) — First sentence in connection with the current police court hearings involving 32 suspects rounded up Aug. 9 was given Thursday to a 22-year-old Vancouver housewife.

Patricia Bagstad was sentenced to six years in prison by Magistrate Thomas Dohm after she pleaded guilty to eight charges of trafficking in narcotics.

It was her second conviction on a trafficking charge. In 1952 she was sentenced to two years for selling narcotics to juveniles.

Also convicted for the second time on a similar charge was self-confessed addict John Madden, 35, a transient, who was sentenced to three years in 1950 after selling drugs to an RCMP undercover agent. He will be sentenced Sept. 6.

Acquitted on a charge of selling a substance purporting to be narcotics was Walter James Glover, 36, of no fixed address. He was charged with selling a match-stick wrapped in silver paper and presented as narcotics.

Bagstad admitted selling single capsules of narcotics by herself five times, and three times with other persons.

Purchases were made by rookie city policeman Ken Scherling and Bob Devente, who worked four months as undercover agents in the Vancouver drug underworld.

They gathered evidence against 32 persons, 25 charged with trafficking in drugs and seven as conspiring to traffic in drugs.

Starting today the feature will appear Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

'Kickback' Scandal Yarn Rouses Burnaby's Reeve

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charges by the Toronto tabloid Flash that department of works officials have been taking "kickbacks" in hiring equipment were scheduled to be discussed today by the municipal council of Burnaby.

Reeve Charles MacSorley said today he had cut short his vacation to call the meeting when the current edition of Flash came out with a headline account of what it termed:

"The smelliest municipal mess ever to be dragged into the open."

The tabloid story said that two municipal employees through the laxity of elected municipal officials, had in company with the head of a large construction firm, swindled taxpayers out of thousands of dollars through padded payrolls for men and equipment.

Reeve MacSorley said today charges by disgruntled equipment operators that "kickbacks" had been taken by municipal employees had been checked by independent auditors and found to be without foundation.

Manhunt Now Centres On Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP here said Thursday they were searching for John Petlock, wanted for questioning in the slaying of five persons near Melville, Sask., earlier this week.

Police said he may have headed for Vancouver because he was familiar with the city's skidroad area.

FENWOOD, Sask. (CP)—RCMP said today investigations have revealed that a methodical killer who wiped out five members of the Petlock family here Monday shot each of his victims three times with a single-shot rifle.

RELIGION PAYS OFF —EXCEPT FOR CASHIER

NANAIMO—A local merchant accepted what he thought were three $1 bills for a purchase made during the rush hour here Wednesday, only to find later that one of them was a religious tract.

The tract, exact size of a $1 bill and the same color and texture, had been placed between the genuine bills by the purchaser.

It was published by The Bible Crusades of Seattle, Wash., and bears the message: "Ask and ye shall receive," "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ Our Lord," and "Given upon request."

'State of Siege' Order Backs New Peron Drive

Ruling Covering Buenos Aires Latest Move In President's Plan to 'Annihilate' Foes

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Congressional approval of a "state of siege" for Buenos Aires has backed up President Juan Peron's new drive to crush his opposition.

The all-Peronista Senate unanimously passed the bill Thursday night after the Peron-dominated Lower House voted it through 109 to 12 in compliance with Peron's demand for emergency powers to "annihilate" his foes.

Peron was expected to affix his signature today, transforming into law the measure affecting the Argentine capital's 3,500,000 citizens.

The whole country was placed under a state of siege for 13 days after the unsuccessful navy revolt against the government June 16.

The new restrictions apply only to Buenos Aires, however.

The chief effect of the measure is expected to be psychological, since Peron already has the special powers under a "state of internal war" clamped on the country in September, 1951, after military men staged another abortive revolt.

NO TRIALS NEEDED

Both "states" suspend constitutional guarantees to permit the government to hold anyone indefinitely without trial and deny them the right to win freedom under habeas corpus proceedings.

Angel Enrique Peralta, who represents the powerful pro-Peron General Confederation of Labor in the house, said the state of siege would last "as long as necessary—until we eliminate the last danger of trouble-makers."

The government bill provoked an uproar from the 12 Radical party members, the only opposition in the house. Scattered violence cropped up in various parts of the country, almost all of it directed at the Radical party.

No deaths were reported, but a Radical provincial deputy was wounded.

FOUNDATION SUBSIDIZES NEW DOCTORS

CHICAGO (AP)—A plan to make unsecured 10-year loans to physicians in the United States seeking to establish practices was announced today by the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

The loans will range up to $25,000 each.

A foundation spokesman said the plan is aimed at helping to bring about a better distribution of physicians—now concentrated in greater numbers in the cities and spread out in lesser numbers in rural regions.

Demands Beer With Shotgun, Fined $50

NANAIMO—Leonard Nobel, who enforced a demand for a glass of beer with a shotgun, was fined $50 and costs in police court here Thursday.

He pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and being drunk in a public place, and was given a severe warning by the magistrate.

According to evidence, Nobel was ousted from a local beer parlor three times Wednesday afternoon. When he returned with the gun, a patron in the beer parlor snatched it away as Nobel was loading it after having threatened the bartender, then held the accused until the police arrived.

Salmon Purchase Reduced Profit On All-Sooke Day

SOOKE—Profits from 1955's All-Sooke Day—$1,935—took a sharp drop from previous years, it was announced at a meeting of the Sooke Community Association.

It was explained by president George Jones that the cause for the drop in revenue was largely owing to the fact that for the first time in some 19 years of operation it was necessary to purchase the ton of fish used in the salmon barbecue. In previous years the fish was donated to the community by the operators of the fish traps.

It was announced that expenditures for the coming year would include certain repairs to the community hall and the construction of an office within the building for the use of organizations using the hall.

A letter from the Sooke Athletic Association advised that its grant of $500 had been used up in the construction of bleachers at the ball park, and that there was a bill outstanding of $250. After some discussion a motion was passed authorizing the association to pay the account.

It was learned from Shirley Women's Institute that the garbage dump at Skookum Gulch has been closed.

Paul Muni Stricken; Douglas in His Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Melvyn Douglas will replace Paul Muni, stricken with an eye ailment, in the starring role of the Broadway hit drama "Inherit the Wind."

A spokesman for producer Herman Shumlin said Douglas had been Muni's suggestion for a replacement, and that Douglas had cancelled plans for a concert tour starting in three weeks so as to take the role.

Soviet Stubborness Widens Arms-Cut Rift

Russian Insistence on Nuclear Ban Seen Death-Blow to Eisenhower Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Diplomatic sources said today they doubted that a week-end recess of UN disarmament talks would bring the United States and Russia any closer together on the basic approach to disarmament.

After four days of conferences, the five-nation UN subcommittee adjourned thursday until Tuesday, giving the delegates a chance to refer back to their governments for new instructions.

But diplomatic sources pointed out that the major factor emerging from the talks thus far is the basic difference of approach to disarmament of the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

The United States insists that before any actual arms reduction can take place, a series of iron-clad safeguards must be set up, such as military inspection, to make sure there is no cheating.

The Soviet Union, on the other hand, wants actual disarmament agreement to come first with an inspection plan to be worked out afterward.

Diplomatic sources interpreted this to mean that the Russians will insist that the United States, Britain, France and Canada agree to such things as limitation of military manpower and banning of nuclear weapons before the Soviets will talk about safeguards.

SERIOUS DOUBTS

Diplomats expressed serious doubt that the Soviets would give a clear-cut answer to President Eisenhower's inspection proposals, which will be discussed in detail next week.

These proposals, as outlined by U.S. disarmament expert Harold E. Stassen, call for an exchange of detailed military plans by the U.S. and the Soviets, aerial inspection of each other's territory and stationing of ground inspection teams at important points to give advance warning of a military build-up.

Some diplomats were outspoken in their belief that Russia had no intention of accepting the Eisenhower plan.

SIX-POINT PROPOSAL

This difference was illustrated yesterday when Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev asked the West to accept a six-point disarmament proposal and said:

"It is my hope that the questions were put in such a way to enable delegates to declare such agreements now exist, which will permit us to move expeditiously to other problems."

Arabs Recall Glubb Pasha

Famed British Soldier to Attend Parley; Israel Accepts Cease-Fire

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—Jordan cabinet ministers today conferred with military leaders about the situation on the Israeli border.

Gen. John Glubb, a Briton known as Glubb Pasha who is the Arab Legion chief of staff, will curtail his leave in England and return to Amman, where the government will call a meeting of the Jordan supreme defence council to study recent clashes between Egypt and Israel, it was learned.

Immediate measures have been taken to prepare Jordan forces on the Israeli border for any possible attack.

Meanwhile, in Jerusalem, one minor incident was reported along the tense frontier on Thursday night after Israel announced conditional acceptance of an appeal to end the fighting.

An Israeli military spokesman at Tel Aviv said Egyptian infiltrators blew up a well shortly before midnight near Yad Mordechai, an Israeli settlement northeast of the Egyptian-held Gaza strip.

It was in the Yad Mordechai area that Israel Thursday claimed two Egyptian jet fighters were shot down by Israel planes.

Israel earlier in the night announced acceptance of a United Nations-proposed cease-fire, providing that "all attacks by Egyptians in whatever form will cease."

NO REPLY RECEIVED

A spokesman for Egypt's Palestine department said in Cairo that Egypt has not replied to the bid, but he announced that Egyptian troops have been ordered to observe a cease-fire.

The spokesman disclosed that Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief of the UN supervision commission, arrived in Gaza this morning for a first-hand investigation of the Israeli attack on Khan Yunis, a rail centre in the strip. The United States and Britain had strongly backed the UN truce supervisor's peace appeal.

Pt. Alberni Man On Slate of 3 IWA Executives

A Vancouver Island man, Walter F. Allen, Port Alberni, is on a slate of three candidates running for top executive positions in International Woodworkers of America elections to be conducted in mid-September.

Ballots for the IWA international biennial election must be distributed to locals throughout North America within 20 days of the international convention, which was held in Milwaukee Aug. 22-26. They will be returned to international headquarters for tabulation within 60 days of the convention.

Others on the slate opposing incumbent officers are James E. Fadling, contesting presidential office held by A. F. Hartung; Burk Christie, opposing J. C. Dicey for first vice president. Incumbent second vice-president is Claude Ballard, for whose position Mr. Allen is running.

All are Americans with the exception of Mr. Allen.

William Botkin was re-nominated IWA international secretary-treasurer without opposition.

There were an estimated 6,079,000 hogs on Canadian farms at the start of June, 938,000 or 18% more than on June 1, 1954.

Milk Strike Settlement Cuts Credit

Chance for a peaceful settlement of a contract dispute involving 185 Victoria milk drivers and inside dairy employees and three distributing firms increased Thursday as Vancouver milk union membership accepted a new offer from mainland dairies.

A union-management negotiating committee arranged the new offer this week, 10 months after Vancouver and Victoria contracts came up for renewal.

The new mainland offer features a tightening of consumer credit, which will mean housewives will not be allowed by drivers to run up large bills with the dairy.

Drivers are guaranteed $270 monthly wage and inside workers have been granted $20 a month increase. Three weeks holiday after 15 years service was also accepted. Joint contributory welfare plan agreed to and the six-day a week milk delivery will stay for at least another year.

There will be no further weekly or monthly credit allowed after the end of 1955, union secretary John Brown Brown said in Vancouver.

A Victoria dairy manager said the three local firms involved would likely wait to hear from their representative in Vancouver before further action is taken. No new development is expected by distributors until next week.

Strike threat in Victoria is still effective as far as the union is concerned. Employees voted by a large majority to walk out if management did not come to terms.

Victoria was awarded parity with Vancouver by a conciliation board which sat in June. Distributors rejected the award.

A strike in Victoria is still possible up to Nov. 9, deadline within which strike action must be taken following strike vote ballot according to the labor relations act.

Immigration Off 27,000 In 6 Months

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration dropped more than 27,000 in the first six months of this year compared with a similar period last year.

The immigration department today announced that arrivals in the six-month period declined to 58,117 from 85,765 in the first six months of 1954.

Biggest declines were registered in arrivals of British, German and Dutch settlers.

British arrivals dipped to 16,170 from 25,939, a decline of almost 10,000. Arrivals of Germans and Dutch dropped to 8,112 from 14,619 and to 9,553 from 10,724 respectively.

Only a slight decline to 12,026 from 13,003 was reported in arrivals of Italians, the other major source of post-war immigration.

The Cost of Ships

IT WOULD BE IMPROPER AT this stage to comment on the work of a royal commission now studying the problems of the Canadian shipping industry. But the policy of the British Columbia government in this, as in all other matters, is the business of the public.

The government proposes two drastic changes in national policy. First, all the shipyards of Canada would be subsidized to enable them to compete with the shipyards of Britain. Second, the British Columbia shipyards would be specially subsidized to enable them to compete with the shipyards of the Atlantic coast. Even at higher costs, the government argues, British Columbia's shipping should be built at home.

In a problem so complex there may be many factors unknown to the public and until the present inquiry is concluded a final judgment must be reserved. But it is obvious that two results must follow from Mr. Bennett's proposed shipping policy.

Britain is to be prevented, if possible, from selling ships to Canada. The fact that the C.P.R. bought four British-made ships for the B.C. coast since the war strikes Mr. Bennett as alarming and deplorable. He seems to forget that since the war, and especially in the present year, Britain has bought far more from Canada than it has sold here.

It has bought massive quantities of British Columbia's products, providing jobs for many thousands of our workers in the forests, mines, fisheries and farms.

It has bought so much, indeed, and incurred such a deficit in its Canadian trade that it must soon sell us more or reduce its purchases from us. We cannot hope to maintain our present one-sided trade balance in the British market, which is so vital to the nation in general and British Columbia in particular.

It happens that Britain can build ships more cheaply than we can. When we buy ships there instead of building them more expensively ourselves we save money and we provide Britain with Canadian dollars to buy our goods. If we refuse to buy British ships we shall pay higher prices elsewhere and limit Britain's capacity to buy here.

It seems to present no problem to Mr. Bennett. He would simply subsidize our shipyards and thus discourage or prevent imports from Britain or from the Atlantic coast, where construction costs are lower than ours.

The second result of his policy thus is a heavy charge on the national treasury, to be paid by all the taxpayers of the nation. Perhaps the British Columbia taxpayers would be willing to provide their share of these costs. It seems unlikely that the taxpayers elsewhere would consent, and highly improbable that the taxpayers of the Great Lakes region, or the Atlantic coast would willingly pay money to undermine their own shipyards and local employment.

Whatever the economic arguments may be, the political arguments certain to emerge if the Federal Government adopts Mr. Bennett's policy are not difficult to imagine.

It will be said in Parliament that the solution of British Columbia's shipbuilding problem is to get construction costs down and that the nation at large is not required to support a higher standard of wages and costs than that prevailing in other parts of the nation.

It will be said also that the national Government, by subsidies or otherwise, has no right to restrict competitive trade between the various parts of the nation.

These are the facts of economics and of politics which British Columbia must face in its shipbuilding industry. The problem is not nearly so simple as it appears in Mr. Bennett's brief.

The Wish and the Risk

IN WARNING THAT RUSSIA'S current policy of friendship with the West may be merely a device to lull the democracies into a false sense of security, Senator Farris last night voiced the doubts of many people, both experts and laymen. The sincerity of Soviet peace overtures is the crux of the great question of our era.

Moscow's protestations of peaceful intent are strengthened by our wish to believe them. Canada is a country in which peacetime conscription is practically an impossibility, in which large sums for armament are spent reluctantly, and in which the people as a whole desire nothing more than to live and trade peaceably with their global neighbors. The assurances of friendliness and tolerance which are now emanating from Moscow strike a welcome note in our ears.

But Senator Farris, in his address to the National Association of Security Administrators here, was not alone in pointing out that this same sort of note was welcomed in 1939, when Prime Minister Chamberlain returned from Munich with Hitler's assurance of "peace in our time." Could the present Russian policy go down in history with such epic double crosses as Munich and Pearl Harbor?

To hold even the most fleeting doubt of such a contingency means, for men in charge of a nation's military security, that armed forces must be kept at a high level and science plumbed for ever faster machines and more potent weapons. No member of a government, no leader, wants to be remembered in his country's history as the man who was gulled by an enemy, hoodwinked into permitting a national disaster.

Thus the Senator was again expressing the opinion of many when he said, "In the end justice must prevail, but it will never prevail unless we are resolute and strong."

If Soviet friendship can only be bought with national weakness, then there must be something wrong with the bargain. The West is bound to retain NATO and other means of defence, and to reduce those means only in proportion as outside dangers are demonstrably diminished.

Chief Joseph's Import Dam

AS IT DID TWO YEARS AGO TO the indignation of Britain's House of Commons, the United States has again turned down low British bids to provide electrical equipment for Chief Joseph dam in Washington state.

U.S. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has explained that contracts were given to American firms to provide assistance for the Pittsburgh region, designated an "area of substantial unemployment."

By this action a higher bill will be thrust upon the American taxpayers. Beyond that, foreign countries will view the transaction as another rebuff to President Eisenhower's policy of "trade not aid" for allies.

Certain pockets of unemployment persist in the United States. Their existence is apparently being used as the equivalent of an "escape clause" familiar in U.S. trade pacts. The Chief Joseph dam contract, however, is awarded at a time when the United States is congratulating itself on its prosperity.

The rejection of the British bid paralleling United States action taken in an earlier case—taken at the expense of a bad conscience—cannot avoid unhappy effects on other countries. Viewing U.S. prosperity they will wonder at what point the U.S. will be able to afford competitive bidding from foreign producers.

Reflecting Growth

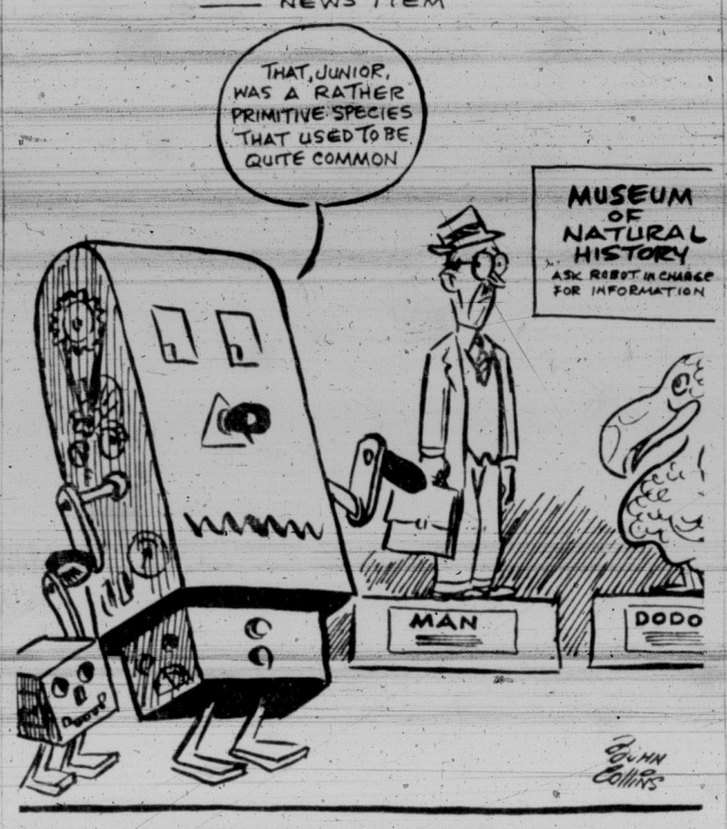
EARLY NEXT MONTH THE Kamloops Sentinel, a pioneer among British Columbia newspapers with antecedents in the gold rush days, plans to re-enter the field of daily publication.

The step is ambitious, entails the investment of substantial additional capital in the plant and will raise to a dozen the newspapers in this province which reach their readers six days a week.

By returning to the ranks of dailies, the newspaper reflects the growth of the territory it serves—a growth represented in the advances made by other newspapers of the interior which have, in different instances, stepped up publication from the weekly to twice-weekly and from twice-weekly to three-times a week schedules.

At a time when many North American newspapers have ceased publication, the Sentinel's decision is significant—an arrow pointing to the surging development of a province whose industrial and economic expansion was detailed in the Times industrial supplement of Wednesday.

The Next Extinct Species?



As Our Readers See It

HOW CAN WE SAVE OUR PARKS?

With my family and friends I have often visited Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park and we do not want to see it ruined by the Power Commission.

I have read in your paper the recent statement by Premier Bennett about flooding the Lake. He says: "The project has gone through all the proper procedure under a democratic process" and that "I am not a Dictator."

When all the people are concerned with the welfare of their oldest and most valued Island Park, is it democratic to deny them the right to be heard when its desecration is proposed by a department of the Government? The Water Comptroller flatly refused to grant a public hearing on the Power Commission application to flood and log Buttle Lake.

There is something else that looks bad to me. All through the spring and early summer the Power Commission told us over and over again in it's news stories in your paper that the Upper Campbell dam would be built in two stages; that the 2nd stage which would add 30 feet to the height of the dam would be started late in 1957. It is now apparent that, while the Commission was telling this story to the public, it was busy preparing plans for a one stage dam which would flood Buttle Lake immediately. The contract for the high dam has now been awarded.

Was the Power Commission afraid to tell the truth because it feared public resentment and opposition?

How can we save any of our parks if a Government servant is allowed to destroy them without giving the owners a chance to protest?

LILLOOET'S OPPORTUNITY

An opportunity has been given Lillooet to not only prove its stability of choice of its elected member, but also to remind Premier Bennett that we live in a democracy.

Not easily will British Columbians forget the contempt thrown at Lillooet by the Premier, when he presumed to walk out of the provincial House as Gordon Gibson began his speech, a contempt that bespattered all the opposition, but did not adhere, instead this action boomeranged to the point where Mr. Gibson, after being unjustly "named" for his indulgence in free speech, was invited to return to the House.

Mr. Gibson's known business success was achieved along a hard, rough road, he now seeks to use his experience to benefit others. Lillooet with its amazing history drawn from the pioneering great, will be proud of its chance to remain steadfast, justifying its choice in the face of the political dust being diffused by new projects, additional road work, et al—knowing these to be the amusing lures put out ad infinitum by political parties of all colors.

While constantly appreciated with a high sense of good humor, these "election" deeds cannot any longer be accepted seriously by the electorate. They are merely "Joss". Lillooet will know.

ABOUT CONTRADICTIONS

Candid, in his criticism of the Word of God, might have included this apparent contradiction: "Judge not, that ye be not judged; for with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." (Matt. vii 1, 2; Luke vi. 37.)

This, without doctrine, might be adduced to prove that it ought not to be said of evil that it is evil, thus, that it is not to be judged that an evil man is evil; according to doctrine, however, it is lawful to judge, but justly; for the Lord says, 'Judge righteous (or just) judgment'" (John vii. 24).

Since it is an evil for finite man to criticize the infinite man, therefore a just judgment against Candid should be quite in order.

If Candid were not in the negative state of mind on the subject, the simple proposition could convince him that the judgment is just. For it is involved in the phrase: "The Word (or Bible) is not understood without doctrine." "There are also some things which appear as contradictions, when yet there is no contradiction in the Word, viewed in its own light." This involves doctrine, which must be drawn from many passages, in order that particulars may be seen under generals. "For there are many truths accommodated to the capacity of the simple" (and children) "who do not elevate their thoughts above such things as they see before their eyes."

COLD STOVE LEAGUE

A letter titled: "Metal Conservation" in your issue of Aug. 30 and signed by Mr. W. T. House, is timely, indeed. Among other metals we should do our best to conserve, he mentions iron. Our family have been the greatest conservationists of iron possible for a very long time.

In the recesses of our basement lies a large iron stove which we have offered in the national interest for a long time, with no takers. Auctioneers scorned it, junk men, the Salvation Army and other likely iron conservationists. We take great pleasure in again offering it free to Mr. House or any other conservationist that cares to take it. May we add that, as a stove, it is still functional. We are tired of conserving.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

I WAS taking a brief look through the autobiography of Marguerite D'Alvarez, the great contralto. It was published last year, a year after she died. From what I could tell at a glance, the accounts of the various men who fell in love with her, and who sent her heaven knows what quantities of flowers, were probably more interesting and varied to the writer than they are to the reader. Inside five minutes I was getting terribly sick of love-struck opera addicts and their bundles of fragrant blooms. But I was fascinated by one passage in the book, and I hope you will be too.

Brock

"My memories of Canada," she says, "are, above all, of its pure silver air, the vastness of its lands, and the warm hospitality of its people, both rich and poor. There I felt like a bird released from its cage, not knowing on which tree to rest." The concert I best remember was the one I gave in Calgary. The hall was made of wood and was as simple as a primitive church. The most interesting members of the audience were the lumberjacks, leaning against the walls in their sheepskin jackets, their thumbs tucked into their waistcoat pockets, and curiosity in their wide, untouched eyes. At the end, their great hands applauded with feverish enthusiasm, and I felt that I had reached their hearts, though they could not have explained why, and I was proud and happy."

WELL, that's Calgary, for you, lad. Lumberjacks everywhere. All of them dressed in the purest sheepskin. But mind you, not all the logging on the plains of Alberta is done by lumberjacks. In the great teak forests near Medicine Hat, for example, much of the logging is done by elephants. And if you think it is touching to see a great-handed timber-beast of a sheep-clad logger in the throes of Music Appreciation, you ought to see what it does to the elephants, with their small untouched eyes. They burst out sobbing. Buckets of tears, really big buckets. In fact, they pass the buckets to each other with their trunks.

Elephants are unable to send many flowers to the singers who have touched their hearts, and this is probably a flaw in their characters. But what is one more sheaf or stook of flowers to a woman who is getting wagonloads of them every hour on the hour? Perhaps if you read this book carefully you can discover the answer. If so, maybe you will let me know. For all I can tell, maybe it is the last bouquet that breaks the camel's back, or reaches the contralto's heart. But I have other books to read just now, with my wide untouched eyes. All I expect is one good surprise in each. And the lumberjacks of Calgary will suffice.

POWELL POETRY

ONE of the books I have to read is a collection of poetry written in Vancouver. No, by golly, two collections. I will quote you a snatch from each. Here is one about a chap's lodgings on Powell Street, in the less magnificent part of Vancouver:

Down here on Powell
Where the Rubby-Dubbs howl
And degenerates prowl all night;
Where the air smells of booze
And the women are loose,
Is a heaven knows who's delight.

There are two more stanzas, but I want you to get used to these powerful lines rather slowly. If you try singing them to the air of "Home on the Range," you will find the power is magnified still more. These lines, by the way, are from "Pencil-Stub Stanzas," by Mr. Gus Sigurdson, published by himself in 1950. I was given this book by a pal, and I am telling you the truth when I say I would rather have it than seventeen bushels of wide untouched flowers.

THE other book, alas, is not mine. . . I merely borrowed it from the library. It is "Vignettes of Vancouver," by Robert Allison Hood, published last year. Do you remember Walter Moberly, a British Columbian of pioneer days? Very well, here is an "epigram" about him, in its entirety:

Brave Walter Moberly lived very soberly,
Died in great poverty oh, 'twas a shame.
But we gave him a monument gloriously
— permanent,
A peak in the Rockies bearing his name!

I don't know which I like better, the attempt to make "permanent" rhyme with "monument", or the implication that sobriety is an act of such bravery that it by itself deserves a monument. As we know, Moberly did other things. But you might not guess it from the "epigram".

Since we've now had three items of Canadiana, let us have one more. In an English catalogue of camping equipment I have just read a testimonial to a certain air mattress which has been used on many a famous expedition. This testimonial was written by Mr. Albert C. Morgenthaler Jr. of Washington. It starts off: "Recently while camping in British Columbia in the Canadas," etc. In the Canadas! How many of them have we got, boys? In practice, of course, we really do have several Canadas. But in name we have only one. Away up north in the Canadas . . . not, of course, where the Rubby-Dubbs howl, but where the lumberjacks prowl all over Calgary, the Queen City of the Woods.

THE BREAKING POINT

THERE is a place in British Columbia named Cultivation Point. A lot of the culture forced on me by cultural do-gooders is a long way past the cultivation point.

THE AMERICAN SCENE

They Endured Too Patiently

BY STEPHEN L. DEBALTA, from Washington

TO all appearances there is a gradual awakening of the American consciousness to the alarming fact that for the past few years, since the onset of the cold war, we have been drifting away from our democratic traditions. The American Bar Association, at its annual meeting last week in Philadelphia, heard addresses that reflected the deep concern of the law with the preservation of individual, national and international freedoms. Lloyd Wright, president of the Association and one of the country's most respected lawyers, was cheered when he asserted that the time was ripe for a "bloodless revolution to restore ancient liberties."

Debalta

These liberties, he said, are endangered by departures from fundamental principles of individual freedom.

"It is because we in this country have enjoyed liberties and privileges to a greater extent than any other people in the world," he added, "that you and I should guard against the erosion of our fundamental rights."

FERVENT APPEAL

Speaking in the same vein, Governor George M. Leader, of Pennsylvania, in a fervent appeal for a more determined defence of liberty and justice, told the lawyers that the American people had "endured too patiently an era of hysteria and erosion of individual rights."

At about the same time as the nation's leading barristers were so dramatically outspoken in deploring the errors of our ways, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the Fund for the Republic, concluded his first report to the public by stating boldly that "although in some particulars the atmosphere is better now than it was five years ago, the misunderstanding of civil liberties, the indifference to them and the violations of them, to which we too easily grow accustomed, are still such as to give cause for alarm."

The Fund for the Republic is part of the Ford Foundation, from which it received $15,000,000 in order, as stated by Dr. Hutchins, "to obtain answers that are pressing now in the field of civil liberties, which the cold war has thrown in unusual disorder."

UNDER ATTACK

The Ford Foundation, like the Rockefeller Foundation and other similar scientific bodies, generously endowed by our civic minded billionaires and dedicated to noble, unselfish and spiritual tasks, has recently been attacked and investigated in Congress, under suspicion of being too "leftist" and harboring subversive designs.

The blistering report of Dr. Hutchins will no doubt rekindle the smouldering hostilities of the militant apostles of intolerant conformism, who have been thriving these past years in an atmosphere of exaggerated fears for U.S. national security.

Though couched in moderate language, his words ring out in relentless indictment of our erroneous methods for preserving the American way of life. Noting that a political party has been identified with the "enemy," Dr. Hutchins said that "it has appeared that the peril to the country could be dealt with only by methods that drastically departed from those which have characterized Anglo-American jurisprudence."

SOCIAL PRESSURE

He continued: "The range of suspected persons has been enormously extended by resort to guilt by association. The evidence offered to show that a man is a danger to American institutions has often been farcically remote. A kind of continuous propaganda and social pressure has been kept up that has tended to suppress conscientious non-conformity."

In conclusion, Dr. Hutchins said: "Political advantage has accrued from claiming that others were indifferent to the threat of communism. Government officers, university presidents and ordinary citizens have felt it necessary to exhibit inordinate anxiety on this score . . ."

Since we emerged not so long ago from under the spell of the McCarthyist hysteria, the charges brought by Dr. Hutchins have a familiar ring. Unfortunately recent events, or rather events recurring with irritating persistence, leave the impression that not much has changed since the political eclipse of Joe McCarthy himself.

CONSTANTLY ALERTED

The country is still being constantly alerted against imminent assaults on our security by enemies from within, keeping alive the bugaboo that our institutions are being undermined by spies, traitors, communist sympathizers and just plain dissenters. Congressional inquiries, investigations by state officials, by Federal and local police, keep the nation jittery, in tense anticipation that some sinister plot against our national existence is about to be uncovered, though nothing ever comes forth of sufficient importance even to the most avid headline hunters.

LOST AND FOUND

Our job's very interesting and last year we had a million to one chance come off. A lady came to my office and said "Inspector, I've just been swimming and I've lost my glass eye. Will it be found?" Now I ask you, what chance was there of that glass eye being washed up on the beach? But lo and behold, two days later one of my chair attendants came to me and said he'd picked up a nice marble . . . but it turned out to be the good lady's glass eye. And was she pleased!

ON THE TIMES By ART STOTT

Another Teacher Shortage

LOOKIT!" says the six-year-old standing at the end of the float. "I'm fly casting."

Stott

He slashes his yard-long metal rod through the air like a sabre in the Charge of the Light Brigade and smashes his weighted line down on the calm lake surface.

A hundred yards away, on another float, an adult who is trying to drop his dry fly on the water as softly as thistledown and not doing it very well smiles indulgently. The boy, he knows, is following the age-old inclination of his kind to perform in a world of make-believe. The fly casting won't last long. In a few minutes the youngster will be off in the bush with his plastic rifle stalking big game or using his toy dump cart in a road construction project on the shore.

"Lookit," shouts the small boy again. "I'm gonna catch a whale," and the line hisses through the air on a gigantic cast of five feet to splash into the water like a ship launching.

Momentarily the adult 100 yards away considers joining the small boy and sharing with him the man's sparse information on fly-casting. His knowledge is small, his dexterity with a rod negligible. But, briefly, he thinks the six-year-old might be interested and, with a little encouragement, might become a fly fisherman with the easy technique of those who come young to the sport.

FLEETING IDEA

The mating thought is short-lived. The kid is enjoying himself. The man isn't catching any fish and plainly, viewed by an expert, isn't doing much better than the boy with his casting. Anyhow, why butt in? Six is too early an age to expect the patience a fly fisherman is supposed to have. And a boy that young might resent intrusion on his play.

So the small pantomime of two inept novices proceeds with relative awkwardness at fly casting until the boy drops his rod on the float for someone else to pick up and darts off, bird-quick, to a different game. Another time, if he can find his equipment, he'll play fly fishing again, setting up his shout, "Lookit, I'm casting. Lookit, I'm gonna catch a whale." And as long as he receives no help he'll never learn what could be a fine pastime for him.

The man thinks of another youngster he met, a stranger of twelve waiting at a bus transfer point after a day's casting. There were no trout in the young fisherman's creel. His rod was packed carefully, a perfume size bottle of special oil was tied to his jacket lapel and the flies he dressed with it were bright patches in the band of a shapeless hat.

INNER PLEASURE

His eyes had brightened as he described the rise in a pond he had found. He had landed nothing, but he'd try again in that quiet pool where clear water lay within its circle of rushes and where a red-winged blackbird sang.

Recalling the young angler, the adult wondered if the six-year-old could be led to the quiet pleasure the older boy had drawn from his day's casting. He wondered if the smaller child could learn simple lessons not merely in fishing, but in treasuring his gear.

He wondered, too, with a small guilt, how a very young generation can be encouraged to learn when an older generation protests it hasn't time, inclination or ability to serve as teacher. Or how the young can be led into a simple understanding of the responsibility to care for things entrusted to them when the elders so frequently allow them to believe it's much easier to buy replacements.

YOUR HEALTH By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Why Should a Mother be Cruel?

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

A MAN told me today (as a number of persons have) that all through his life his mother kept telling him that he never was wanted, and that she and the father resented his coming. Occasionally, parents will vary this a bit and keep telling a son that he wasn't wanted because they so badly wanted a girl, or they tell a girl she was not wanted because they so much desired a son.

Dr. Alvarez

Recently, I saw a woman who told me that one day an older sister staggered her, nearly killing her emotionally, and took away all the joy in life by saying that she knew that the mother much resented my patient's birth. The mother was disgusted when she found herself pregnant again, and from the day of the child's birth, she resented having to care for her and feed the extra mouth.

One can easily see, of course, why in many cases the coming of an extra child could not be desired because of financial and other reasons. Sometimes the coming of an extra mouth to feed must make all the difference between the family's barely getting by and not getting by. Perhaps it will make the difference between parents being able to educate two children, and not being able to educate them well and put them through college.

But no human being with any sense of decency or any kindness in his or her heart would ever do such a terrible thing as to let the child know that he or she was not wanted. Thank God, there are millions of poor people in this world who keep welcoming with a full and happy heart every child who comes, even after there are eight or 10 already in the family. For a beautiful picture of such a family, read Christy Brown's book, "My Left Foot" (Harper's) or, of course, "Cheaper by the Dozen."

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE IN ENGLAND

A thoughtful English physician who has moved to the United States tells me that in his opinion the British health plan is fairly satisfactory. He thinks many physicians and dentists now are making more money than they did before, but some of the specialists may be getting a poor deal. He thinks the medical service given is good enough. When his wife gave birth to their son in a nursing home, there was no charge for the doctor, the midwife, a private room, and all the other items which, in this country, cost a lot of money. Before leaving England the doctor had his teeth checked over and it cost him $2.80.

SKIN DISCOLORATION

Perhaps a million and a half people in the U.S. have big white areas in their skin; large spots in which the pigment has disappeared. Until recent years, I doubt if skin specialists paid much attention to these things; they knew there was not much that they could do to put the pigment back, and the only reason for fussing with the spots was that the patients were distressed emotionally by them. These people never come to any bad end, but they are self-conscious and afraid that people will think they have some awful disease. Today, a skin specialist can give a drug called mathoxsalen. I now read that after from six to nine months of treatment with this drug the pigment may come back. It is most likely to come back in those cases in which the disease has recently appeared.

Other persons complain bitterly because they get spots of black pigmentation of heavy freckles, especially on the face or back of the hands. Now there is a drug called monobenzone which is said to help these people. Again, the treatment must be kept up for two or three months. The drug can be bought in ointment form. Those who wish such treatment should consult either their family physician or a skin specialist.

HOW POISON IVY CAN GET AT ONE

A while ago I heard from a woman who was so severely affected by poison ivy she had to be hospitalized. She had been in a place which backed up against a bit of forest land.

When told by the skin specialist that what she had was almost certainly poison ivy the woman could not believe it because, as she said, she never went near the forest. What she forgot was that she often petted her dog which had been hunting in the forest. When I taught her not to touch the dog, she was better for a year; and then, one day, she broke out badly again. Her boys had been through the forest and later she had handled their trousers. The other day she had a bad spell. What had happened was that someone had set a fire in the forest and she had got into the smoke. This was full of the irritant chemical that comes out of the plant when it is heated.

I remember persons who, driving along a highway, went through much smoke from a brush fire. They were so prostrated with a severe inflammation of the skin that, for a week, they had to be hospitalized.

When my brother was a lad, he used to go rabbit hunting. Poison ivy never bothered him, but when he came home and kissed his mother, her lips swelled up. There was enough poison dissolved in his perspiration to hurt her.

Liquor Rationing Ends in Sweden Oct. 3

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) All advertisements for alcoholic drinks disappeared from Swedish newspapers, billboards and neon signs today, just over a month before Swedes will be able to buy unlimited quantities of wines and spirits. This is part of the governments temperance campaign, started in the hope of preventing Swedes from becoming too tipsy when liquor comes off the ration October 3.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Early Perennials May Be Moved Now

Plants which may be divided, or moved, in the perennial border at this time are those which flower the earliest in the spring.

Hilda

Doronicum plantagineum or leopard's bane, is the clear yellow daisy on a three-foot stem which blooms at the end of the daffodil season. Possibly for that reason its color is not as popular as it should be, though it combines beautifully with tulips.

They are easy to grow, if a few points are remembered. It is, for instance, essential that the plants be divided every other year, for otherwise they deteriorate rapidly.

This division should take place immediately flowering has ceased, usually during early June with us here in Victoria. In show gardens doronicum is grown singly, that is, one flower stem to a plant, and the plants set fairly close together. The blooms are then magnificent.

In the fall, at this time, the little divisions which have been growing all summer, may be moved with roots intact to their flowering positions.

The flower buds are made during fall, and may be found below soil level many weeks before they open in early spring.

Doronicum could well be grouped in the tulip border, since both types of plants will be ready to dig at approximately the same time in June. Not fussy as to soil or location, they will be found to respond to ample moisture during the summer growing period. They flower in full sun, but last longer if growing in slight shade from the hot spring sunshine.

Youngest, Oldest In B.C. Increase

Youngsters and oldsters in B.C.'s population registered increases during August, according to a report issued today by W. R. Bone, regional director, Department of National Health and Welfare.

More than 400,000 children received Family Allowances as compared with 397,309 in July. The increase in Old Age Security pensioners jumped from 91,287 to 91,772.

Family Allowance payments for August totaled $2,420,158 and Old Age Security, $3,697,951.

TRUCK GARDENING, TOO!

Uplands Boarding Houses Legal Now---But Not For Long

By PETE LOUDON

Horrors! A loophole in Oak Bay zoning regulations which would permit a householder to take in dozens of lodgers, even in the swank Uplands district, was pointed out to Oak Bay council Thursday night.

The disclosure came in a letter from Town Planning Commission which reported on a TPC effort to consolidate and revise all of Oak Bay's zoning regulations into one streamlined up-to-date code.

The commission promised further reports and pending that, council received and filed the comments on the present sorry state of affairs.

As if it weren't enough that someone in Uplands might legally go into the rooming house business, council was also told that another oversight made no distinction between hotels and apartments.

A large hotel, with all its attendent evils, can legally be built in any of Oak Bay's generously defined apartment areas.

And commercial (dash the word) greenhouses can be built in residential areas and truck gardening (you think a little truck with gardening doesn't hurt when you are young, but one day it gets a hold on you. It's only a short step then to used car lots).

The commission, needless to say, has changes in mind.

And it has borrowed a leaf or two from the long awaited Victoria Zoning By-law which gets public hearing September 8.

There will be phrases to cover building of basements and cellars which are undefined in Oak Bay at present, and there will be suggestions to cover heights of new buildings.

There might be new regulation regarding building of churches. And it is suggested that like the city, Oak Bay adopt the practice of writing to all property holders within a 200-foot radius of any lot which may be rezoned, rather than relying on advertising of a public hearing.

Further study is slated too for the question of cottage industries. The TPC feels there should be no employees allowed where a resident produces home-made items for sale. No stock shall be carried on the premises and none sold on the premises.

Finally, it is recommended that no occupation shall be carried on which causes objectionable noise or nuisance.

There is still one natural protection, however, which may serve to save Uplands from developing any rooming houses. A homeowner can keep an unlimited number of lodgers, provided they are not supplied with meals on the premises.

And it's a long hike to the closest coffee shop.

SECURITIES CHIEFS WARNED

New Russian Attitude 'Blind' Senator J. W. DeB. Farris Suggests

A warning that Russia's apparent new attitude toward international affairs may be a blind to lull the free world into a false sense of security was sounded here Thursday night by Senator J. W. deB. Farris, of Vancouver.

Speaking before Canadian and American financial figures gathered here for the concluding session of the 38th annual meeting of the National Association of Security Administrators, Sen. Farris questioned:

"Can the Ethopian change his skin or the leopard his spots?"

Referring directly to the Russians he asked:

"Is this sudden change of heart a real change, or is it only a change in tactics? Having failed to dominate us by threats of force, are they now seeking new tactics to disarm us by guile? I say, let us look at the record."

SENATOR J. W. deB. FARRIS

TRUST SHATTERED

The record cited at this point was the findings of the United States Judiciary Committee, which recently reported that the Soviet Union had entered into some 1,000 treaties and agreements during its 38 years of existence and had "broken its word to virtually every country to which it ever gave a signed promise."

Sen. Farris, dealing with the recent summit talks in Geneva called attention to the now famous summary of British Foreign Secretary that "There ain't gonna be any war."

FOOLISH TALK

This kind of talk, Sen. Farris declared, was "foolish."

"It is just what the Russians want us to think. . . It recalls to us Chamberlain's statement on his return from his conference with Hitler at Munich: 'This means peace in our time.'"

"How sad was the awakening from that unhappy statement," the senator remarked.

To meet the present-day situation, the speaker continued, Canada, the United States and Britain must continue to be on guard to maintain what he termed "our dominating power."

"The lesson we must learn is that you cannot appease the devil; and peace without world wide inspection and control of the production of armaments will be a peace of folly and cowardice ending in disaster.

"It behooves us to be strong and determined at this time more than ever in our history.

"In the end justice must prevail but it will never prevail unless we are resolute and strong."

The senator said there are only two ways of avoiding another world war.

"One," he said, "is to maintain our supremacy in the production of modern methods of atomic destruction."

"This," he conceded, "is the solution of desperation and carries with it the continued threat of world destruction. Yet, the other way is so simple it may well be impossible. All it requires is for the people of the world to come to their senses and become good neighbors."

Top Liberals Split—Bonner

Attorney-General Says Gibson Tactics Not Backed by Party

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP)—A charge that the Lillooet by-election has become an issue of Liberal party leadership was made here Thursday night by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

The Liberals' campaign is one of "calculated deceit," Mr. Bonner said in opening a 10-day speaking tour in support of the Social Credit candidate, Donald F. Robinson.

He said it was not really a Liberal campaign, and as far as Liberal leader Arthur Laing and Gordon Gibson, Liberal candidate in the by-election, are concerned, it is not really a question of who shall represent the riding.

"For them," Mr. Bonner said, "it is a question of whether Laing shall continue as leader of the Liberal party."

"It is well known," said Mr. Bonner, "that responsible Liberal officials who ordinarily would be assisting have withdrawn completely from the campaign in disgust at the tactics being employed."

Mr. Bonner said the Liberals have endeavored to make forest management an issue in an effort to distract the people from the government's accomplishments.

He charged that Mr. Gibson's resignation from the legislature was not done as a protest against forest policy.

"He resigned in disgrace," the attorney-general said, "when he could not support before the royal commission the groundless charges he made against the government."

Liberal party opposition of forest management licence legislation was called a "sham" by Mr. Bonner.

"This opposition is a sham because when their candidate (Mr. Gibson) testified before the Sloan commission a week ago he was agreeable to having 40 per cent of the forests of the province placed under forest management licence."

Mr. Bonner said that only 10 per cent of B.C.'s forest inventory has been brought under such management.

"This means," he added, "Mr. Gibson was agreeable to the government going 400 per cent farther than it has gone today."

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE HEARING HELD OVER

Peter Sweeney, 235 Burnside West, was remanded to Sept. 8 without plea when he appeared Thursday in Saanich police court on a charge of criminally negligent driving.

Sweeney was charged after Robert Russell, 23, 30 Gorge West, was struck by a car while standing in the driveway to his home Saturday at about 10.20 p.m.

Russell has been in critical condition in hospital since the accident. He sustained a broken neck, spine injuries and a fractured pelvis.

Ban on British Ships Urged by Engineers

Union Fears Canadian Pay Rates Cut If Coastal Shipping Unrestricted

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Association of Marine Engineers Thursday told the royal commission on coasting trade that Canadian ships would not be able to compete with British vessels if they were allowed to operate in this country's coastal trade.

In a brief presented by H. B. McKie, the association said the Canadian shipping industry would not be able to compete against British ships and rates of pay unless restrictions were imposed to protect Canadian engineers.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of Toronto, head of the three-man commission, asked Mr. McKie whether Canadian employees were pricing themselves out of existence.

"That is a red herring," replied Mr. McKie. "That theory has been heard from the time of Dickens, when child labor in the steel industry was being discussed."

Mr. Justice Spence: "But the ships have to compete in a world market."

Mr. McKie: "If cheapness of labor is a consideration, China would be prosperous and the U.S.A. would be bankrupt."

Mr. Justice Spence suggested that if employees could not succeed in the shipping industry, then perhaps they could find work in some other field.

The commission also heard a brief Thursday from J. F. Ellis, general manager of Union Steamships Ltd., who recommended that coastal trade be restricted to Canadian ships manned by Canadian crews.

However, Mr. Ellis said his company was opposed to the view that Canadian-operated ships be built in this country. This, he said, would raise fees and provide more traffic for airlines.

Government Asked to Keep Boy of 14 Out of Oakalla

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—The attorney-general's department will be asked to intercede in the case of a 14-year-old Prince George boy sentenced to Oakalla prison farm.

The boy was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment by Magistrate York Hardy of Smithers after he pleaded guilty to car theft. It was his first offence. He gave his age as 16, and a false name.

He was then brought to Prince George to face a similar charge and was recognized by a provincial jail guard and his true identity and age became known.

He pleaded guilty to the local car theft charge and was first sentenced to a term of three month definite and six month indefinite in the young offenders' unit at Oakalla, to be served concurrently with the Smithers sentence.

A short time after sentence was handed down by Magistrate P. J. Moran, police learned that boys under 16 cannot be sentenced to the young offenders' unit, although there is no legislation preventing them from being sent to ordinary prisons.

His lawyer, George Stewart, explained that the Smithers sentence took precedent over the Prince George sentence and the city magistrate had no alternative but to issue a concurrent sentence.

He will be one of the youngest inmates ever admitted to the provincial prison if the sentences are carried out.

B.C. Work Starts On Big Microwave

B.C. Telephone Company engineers are path-testing the route of the western section of the world's longest microwave system, which will provide television channels and additional long distance telephone circuits from Vancouver to Sydney, N.S.

Path-testing has been completed between the Crowsnest Pass and Morrissey Ridge, near Fernie; between the Fernie site and Moyie, and between Moyie and Thompson Mountain, near Creston.

Engineers are now working on the last links with the coast. The $5,000,000 B.C. section of the microwave system is scheduled for completion in 1958.

Tee Topics

By BILL WALKER

The story out of Montreal this week was "Stan Leonard."

The Vancouver professional, who this summer gave up a more than moderate living as Marine Drive professional to hit the Gold Trail, came within a whisker of winning the Labatt tourney.

This wasn't any week-end outing for the kicks. Stan was in tough against them all—all the best.

True, Stan didn't win, but his second-place finish was worth almost $1,000. He was fourth in the Canadian Open the week previous, and picked up $1,500. That's better than par for the Gold Trail, and a few shekels more than some of the lads who have been playing regularly on the circuit can count as their total reward.

Leonard, who should know, having proved the fact, explains the difference between playing for dough, or going along for the ride, this way:

"My game hasn't changed any," he was reported as saying, "but my attitude has.

"Now I'm just playing golf, and there's nothing on my mind but golf."

And that's the way it is with professionals. Their bread-and-butter business is nothing more than learning to think and to play as a professional. In this way the game becomes more natural.

Champions' Trademark

If you have the talent, the two main ingredients to mature that talent are experience and attitude.

Certainly, as Leonard says, you can't expect to play like a winner, if you don't think like one.

Now it's a brief fishing holiday for Leonard, and entry in a few western tournaments before he picks up the gold trailers again. He plays in the Manitoba Open Sept. 9-10.

Certainly, and even at 43 years of age, he has given the lie to the thought that Canadians can't hold their own with those who have made a specialized business of putting for dough (or taking the day bus to the next tourney).

This Took Some Doing

They tell the story, too, of Leonard playing at Tam O' Shanter.

The clubhouse bar was doing its usual fine trade when the announcement came over the PA system:

"On the tee, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Canada."

Someone remarked:

"You oughta see this guy hit a ball."

Within seconds the bar was all but empty, the glasses still filled.

It wasn't until Stan had driven off that the flies returned and without even showing the same courtesy for the next competitor.

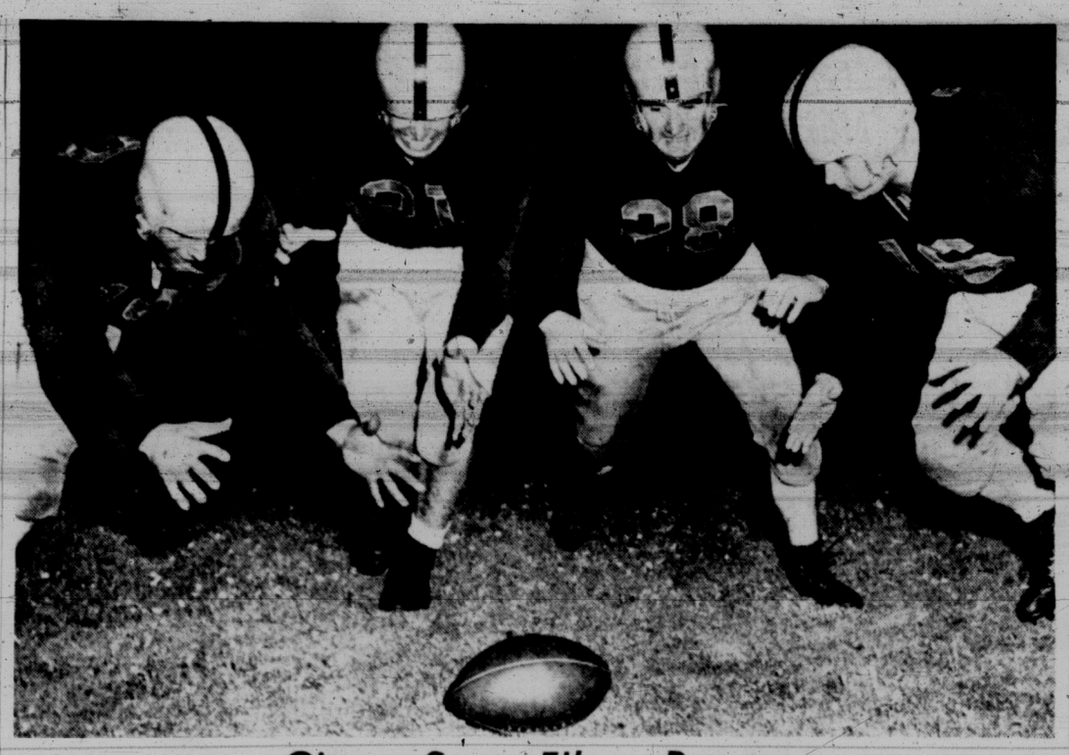
It takes a lot for a fellow to demand that much attention.

And now, it seems, Stan will demand more.

Bunker Blasts — Colwood lost the inter-club match to Rainier at Seattle over the week-end, and George Andrews might have lost more than that. The reason is that he holed out on the 200-yard 13th in a practice round. He used a three iron . . . Tom Ely had a hole-in-one at the 165-yard second at Oak Bay . . . Johnny Merriman's "retirement" didn't last long . . . He's back with button partner Bob Fleming again . . . Winnipeg's Mrs. Doreen Brown, who went to the 16s of the Canadian Ladies' Golf championship here three weeks ago, recently won the Manitoba championship for the second time . . .

DUTY CALLS

WINNIPEG—Billy Hooper, the Winnipeg Blue Bomber surprise American import quarterback, arrived here by air at 2 a.m. this morning and was out for a pre-breakfast football practice less than six hours later.



Gimme Some Elbow Room

If there are any fumbles in Saturday's exhibition football game between Oak Bay Drakes and Vancouver CYO Red Raiders, this foursome of hefty Drake linemen will be there to gobble them up. Converging on a loose ball are, left to right, Trev West, 220-pound tackle; Jack Sim, 210-pound end; Harry Turner, 210-pound guard, and Joe Fry, 240-pound guard. Drakes meet Red Raiders at Athletic Park at 2.30 and take on Vampires Monday at Macdonald Park at 2 in the opening game of the Intermediate League season. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

'Red' Supports 'Bus'; Arena Floor 'Slippery'

By DENNY BOYD

Nanaimo Timbermen manager Bus Macdonald, disturbed over the condition of the Memorial Arena floor in last Monday's Timbermen-Victoria Shamrock playoff game, drew support from an unexpected source today.

Macdonald said earlier this week he felt that recent repairs being made to the floor had rendered the playing surface so slippery it was dangerous to the players.

Shamrock coach Red McMillan, while not as outspoken as Macdonald over the situation, agreed that "there's no doubt about it. The floor definitely was slippery on Monday night. But I believe the arena is doing everything possible to fix it."

Macdonald said today: "I want to have a look at the floor tonight before we go out on it. I think it should be swept or washed to get that loose dust off the top. I'm not complaining because we lost Monday night. What worries me is the danger of a player slipping and busting himself badly. The referees, Syd Greenwood and Eric Dickinson, will agree with me. They told me Monday night that the floor was too slippery to be playable."

MONAGHAN MISSING

As the clubs prepared to meet tonight in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series for the western Canada senior championship, Shamrocks leading 2-1, it appeared that Shamrocks' swivel-hipped defenceman Bob Monaghan is out for the rest of the series.

Monaghan suffered a severe knee injury in Nanaimo Wednesday night and is practically certain to sit out the remainder of the Nanaimo series.

Tonight, veteran Arnie Ferguson will be moved back on defence to take Monaghan's place and Al Gill will make his first appearance of the series on the forward line, his injured leg having responded to rest and treatments.

Gill will work with Jack Northup and Al Davies on one forward unit. The old "punch line" of Larry Booth, Whitey Severson and Archie Browning will be reunited and the other line will be made up of Jack Bionda, Peewee Bradshaw and Bob Dobbie.

Timbermen, fired up over Wednesday's victory, will have a full line-up tonight. Jim McNulty, this year's league scoring champion, left Wednesday's game in the second quarter but only to rest a chronic groin injury suffered while playing hockey in Baltimore during the winter. The potent, poker-faced forward will be in the line-up tonight.

LIONS' GRID FANS GASTRONOMIC CHAMPS

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Lions home games are always a success—gastronomically, at least.

Never before has so much been eaten by so many in such a short time as at Empire Stadium during Western Interprovincial Football Union games.

In the first home game of the season, more than 28,000 hungry fans downed 415 feet of hot dogs, 15,000 cups of soft drinks and coffee, 50,000 ice-cream bars and 3,000 bags of peanuts.

The hot dog sales totted up to about $6,000, the drinks $4,500 and the ice cream, peanuts and 2,500 seat cushions another $1,500.

Lane Fined $500, Ordered to Apologize

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Lane, explosive general manager of Chicago White Sox, was fined $500 and ordered Thursday to make a public apology for what commissioner Ford Frick termed "unbecoming conduct" during a game Tuesday night in Chicago.

Lane, summoned to New York to face the commissioner, immediately apologized and then gave his own explanation of what happened in front of the box of Will Harridge, the American League president.

Sports writers said Lane stormed into Harridge's box in the seventh inning and began abusing umpire Larry Napp in loud, pungent language.

Lane acknowledged he did so but said his remarks were aimed not at Harridge but instead at Cal Hubbard, chief of the league's umpires, sitting in Harridge's box.

Frick, after a brief conference, sent the following telegram to parties concerned:

"For conduct unbecoming a baseball official and for using violent profane language Frank Lane is fined $500 payable to this office by personal cheque within five days. It is understood Lane will make a proper public apology to Mr. Harridge, the American League and to the Chicago fans.

In his version, Lane said: "I protested strongly against the actions of umpire Larry Napp in ejecting Sherm Lollar, our first string catcher, from the game after he had permitted a Boston player to remain despite a serious offence.

. . . I guess I used pretty strong language at that to get my point across."

The White Sox won 7-5.

QUICK THINKING

Silent Plea Heard By Police

CHICAGO (AP) — When Wednesday night's Boston League started the scoreboard in Thrillens Stadium read:

Braves.

Red Sox.

Along about the middle of the game, the letters were juggled and some added to read:

"Send the cop."

Policeman Maurice Nudelman, on duty in the park, spotted the silent alarm and hurried behind the fence. There he found Walter Schneider, 13, a seventh grader tending the score by innings.

He explained to Nudelman that several youths had been loitering between the outfield fence and the park fence. Every ball that was batted between the fences they caught and kept.

Nudelman chased the youngsters but made no arrests.

Speedy Costa, 21, was an 11-5 favorite to defend his No. 4 ranking in the feather division against unranked, 26-year-old Bell.

Colwood Golf

Mrs. Ross Crane finished with a score of 1 down to par Thursday at Colwood Golf Club to defeat Mrs. C. H. Harrell for the women's handicap challenge cup.

Fletchers Win; Play in B.C. Final

Fletchers 1-8, Arrows 3-3

(Fletchers win best-of-seven series, 4 games to 2.)

Cec Fletchers, with Barry Jackson supplying the impetus from the mound, have captured their second-straight Vancouver Island senior A men's softball championship. They will now meet Vancouver IBEW Saturday afternoon at 2 at Central Park in the opening game of the B.C. final.

Thursday night at Athletic Park, Jackson won his fourth game of the Fletchers-Arrows' series as he hurled his team to an 8-3 victory in the second game of a double header. Earlier Arrows had forced a seventh game when John Furmston pitched them to a 3-1 win.

Victory was Jackson's eighth in nine games against Arrows.

The series was strictly a pitchers' duel. Jackson won the opening game 4-2, and Furmston came back to tie Ed Foychuck 0-0 in the second. Jackson won the third 3-2 on a 10th-inning home run by Ab Wiebe. Furmston pitched and batted Arrows to an identical 3-2 win in the fourth game.

Wednesday, Fletchers broke out for a 9-4 win, and again it was Jackson, but in the first game Thursday night it was Furmston, 3-1.

Coach Gar Taylor of Arrows strung along with Furmston for the second half of the double-header, but it was too much to ask. Although Arrows scored three times in the second inning on four hits, the roof fell in in the last half of the second as Fletchers knotted the score on three hits and a walk.

Fletchers then broke out in the third with two lead-off singles, and Taylor brought in Archie Sluggett from right field to pitch.

Sluggett got out from under with just one run scoring, but it just wasn't in the books for an Arrows' win.

Sluggett was reached for another run in the fourth, and Fletchers ran wild in the last of the fifth with three runs on two doubles, a wild pitch, stolen base, and a sacrifice fly.

In the meantime Jackson powered his way through the final seven innings scattering four hits and more or less dominating the game.

Bernie Clarkson of Fletchers opened the first game with his third home run of the series, but Arrows battled back and tied it up in the second on a home run by Gar Taylor, and added single runs in the third and fourth.

Furmston looked good in winning that game, and everyone in the stands could have told who Taylor was going to start in the second; and, as far as the fans were concerned, it was a good move. But it didn't work out.

MARTIN'S RETURN 'BAD NEWS' FOR YANKEE FOES

Can 'Billy the Kid' Do It?

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Billy the Kid charged back into the lineup today and it could be the winning pennant "lift" for the New York Yankees.

He is the type, this home-coming Billy Martin, who puts a ball club on its toes. He is of the same stamp and calibre of the occasional Eddie Stankys and Pepper Martins.

As ball players they had great deficiencies but they won ball games.

That's Martin. He is a brash, cocky guy who throws his 165 pounds around like a combination Rocky Marciano and all-American tackle. This is a .260 hitter convinced of his talents to spot the likes of Ted Williams 20 points and beat him for the batting title.

Not that he could. Yet it is the belief which is important in a trade where phlegmatic mediocrity has become the rule rather than the exception.

The return of this breezy, uninhibited competitor comes at a time of great Yankee need. They have, of late, bogged badly from time to time in various departments. One of the biggest deficits concerned the lack of a "holler guy," a raucous needler to get them up on their toes.

There can be no doubt but what a team which wins the close one needs inspiration from within. In the pre-Martin era it was another Californian, Joe DiMaggio, who provided that impetus. Joe was aloof and dignified but when they had him they felt that they would win—and usually did.

Martin gives them that same, bold confidence, with comic relief. Suffice it to say that in the three years before he marched away to don khaki the Yankees made it five pennants in a row. He took over in the confidence department when the retiring Joe stepped out.

The stories they tell of Billy would make him appear a man of unlimited conceit. Such as the time he came up from Kansas City in 1951 and, after a period on the bench, Casey Stengel finally put him in a game in the eighth spot in the batting order.

"What is this, a gag?" asked the impudent rookie.

"Is what a gag?" queried the startled Stengel.

"This batting order," Billy fumed. "You've got me hitting just ahead of the groundskeeper."

Stengel looked at him in wonder and then inquired sarcastically:

"Where do you think you should hit, Mister Martin? Fourth, maybe?"

Billy looked him squarely in the eye and rasped:

"Where else?"

They still laugh at that in the Yankee locker room. But they also remember that in the 1953 world series, just before he went away, Billy The Kid hammered out 12 hits to tie the series record.

It's in the big ones and in the tight spots that those of the Martin type always seem to come through. Like his catch which put away the 1952 series. And certainly the Yankees are in a perilous position now, squaring off in a hectic stretch race with the Indians and White Sox.

So you can't blame them for feeling that the return of Billy The Kid is strictly bad news for the opposition.

ROCKY, 31, HAS HIS CAKE, BUT ANN EATS IT

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)—World heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano celebrated his 31st birthday Thursday by cutting a cake.

It was a double birthday celebration for Marciano's wife, Barbara, was 26 Wednesday. Rocky sliced the cake but most of the eating was done by Mary Ann, the Marciano's three-year-old daughter.

Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine, presented the champion with the "fighter of the year" award before Rocky entered the ring for a round of sparring with each of his four sparmates.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MONTH

AL Flag Race Huff-Puff Derby

By The Associated Press

For all the huffing and puffing they did during August, the three leading contenders for the American League pennant might just as well have taken a month's rest.

For the last 32 days, Chicago White Sox, Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees — all idle Thursday — have been scrapping to a standstill. Going into the final 2½ weeks of the season today, they're practically in the same spot they were Aug. 1.

Here's how they stood then:

	W	L	Pct.	GBL
Chicago	62	39	.611	—
Cleveland	62	41	.602	1
New York	62	41	.603	1

And here's the way they are today:

	W	L	Pct.	GBL
Chicago	79	51	.608	—
Cleveland	79	52	.603	½
New York	79	52	.603	½

The only difference is that White Sox, catching up in games played, had one more game than Yankees and Indians and lost it.

For the month, New York was on top 13 days, Chicago 12 and Cleveland five. Indians, who also shared the lead for a day with New York, had the biggest August lead—two games. Yanks led by 1½, Chicago by one.

YANKS NEED '18

Yank manager Casey Stengel says "We have more to play and must win 18 to make sure. I realize that's 97 wins, but that's what it will take, I thought before it could be done with 94."

Yanks were in the best position to get off to a fast start on their way to 97. They opened a home stand this afternoon with Washington Senators whom they have beaten 11 times in 16, while White Sox and the Tribe meet in the first game of a four-game series at Cleveland tonight. Sox and Indians have split in 16 games.

Chicago's Marty Marion is counting on Connie Johnson, a plum picked from Toronto Maple Leafs who has won six, lost three, against Cleveland. Sal (0-1) Maglie.

Washington, stubborn of late against White Sox and Cleveland, has Maury McDermott, Bob Porterfield and Pete Ramos on tap for Yanks, who will counter with Whitey Ford, Don Larsen and Bob Turley.

The only action Thursday was in the National League, where Brooklyn Dodgers made the most of seven hits to thump Milwaukee Braves 6-3, Cincinnati Redlegs defeated New York Giants 7-4 and Pittsburgh Pirates again edged St. Louis Cardinals 7-6.

Football Finding New Fields to Conquer

HALIFAX (CP)—Canadian football is fast becoming "the" sport in Nova Scotia.

It's booming and the five-team Nova Scotia senior Canadian football league is outdrawing the old favorites, baseball and hockey.

Such has been its success in the last 10 years that English football has just about faded from the scene.

League president John Funston of Halifax said: "The league's getting better each year and the fans are growing with the game. With this combination it can't fail to prosper."

Making up the league are the navy clubs, Stadacona and Shearwater, Dalhousie and St. Francis Xavier Universities and the Greenwood RCAF.

The league title went to Dalhousie in 1954.

The navy clubs, smarting since last fall, the first time in the league's history that one or the other wasn't in the finals, have new coaches.

A fiery petty officer from Victoria, James (Jim) Carleton, will be at Stadacona while across the harbor in Dartmouth, Don Looney will be giving the orders. Looney was out west last season and played for a time with Winnipeg Blue Bombers until an injury forced him to the sidelines.

St. Francis Xavier also have a western coach in Frank Germain from Notre Dame College of Wilcox, Sask.

Big John's Therapy Fails

John Furmston of Arrow Furniture tried to instil more power into his pitching thumb Thursday night at Athletic Park between games of a doubleheader with Fletchers in the senior men's softball final. Furmston set Fletchers down on four hits to give Arrows a 3-1 victory in the first game, and was given the nod by coach Gar Taylor to start the second. But, despite his personal therapy, Furmston didn't have it for the second game and was knocked out in the third inning. Fletchers won the game, 8-3, and the series, four games to two. Twin Aces Make History, But Sam Pretty Hot Too

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UP)—One of the most amazing feats in golf history occurred in the opening round of the $20,000 Insurance City Open today when amateur Bill Whedon, of Farmington, aced two of the first nine holes.

Whedon, one of the early starters, got a hole-in-one on the 168-yard fifth, and another on the difficult 208-yard ninth.

He began play with four straight bogeys and turned in another on the 356-yard eighth. He had only two pars on the outgoing nine, but wound up with a one-over-par 36 at the turn.

Ray O'Brien, PGA tournament director, said it was the first time in tournament history that a player had made two holes in one in one round.

Meanwhile, Sam Snead got off to a flying start and scored a four-under par 31 at the end of the first nine. He belted a 300-yard drive from the first tee, then wedged the ball into the cup for an eagle two. Snead was in the tournament to nail down a place on the Ryder Cup team.

BAY SPRINGS INVADE INLET

Some misdirected Cowichan Bay springs may make this a happy week-end for the angling fraternity.

Capt. Barnes of the Anchorage boathouse reported Thursday that several boats have taken their limit this week with catches averaging between 8-15 pounds. Herring strip is the acceptable lure.

Grilse fishing is also good with spinner and worm doing the trick.

Viduals Seek B.C. Crown

Individuals, winners of Victoria and Vancouver Island women's softball honors, will travel to the interior this week to seek their third straight B.C. championship.

Individuals will compete in a double-loss elimination tournament with Vancouver Royals and two interior teams. In winning the title the past two years, Individuals have been undefeated.

Games will be played in either Vernon or Kelowna.

Kay Wins Bursary Golf

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Kay, professional at the Montreal Mount Bruno course, Thursday coasted to a five-stroke win in the $4,000 Bursary golf tournament.

His final round of 74 gave him a 210 total compared with 215 for tournament favorite Bill Mawhinney, Vancouver Quilchena, and Norm Smith, Toronto York Downs.

The three men share $4,000 prize money, designated to give each a 10-week "holiday" on the winter golf loop in the United States.

OAKLAND, Calif.—Ralph Dupas, 139, New Orleans, drew with Leonard Haines, 136, Oakland (10).

Well-Heeled Argonauts Tackle 'Cats' Saturday

TORONTO (BUP)—Front office football will take a back seat here Saturday when the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, boasting controversial Nobby Wirkowski as quarterback, tackle a top costly Argonaut team, valued at $250,000 at Varsity Stadium.

Since the 1954 season ended last November, when Edmonton took the Grey Cup, football brass has been talking about salaries and peace treaties, especially Toronto's Harry Sonshine.

Sonshine, in a controversial move, let all last year's imports go—along with coach Frank Clair. Loosening the purse strings which Clair said hampered him, Sonshine hired Bill Swiacki as head coach, and two assistants—Bill Earley and Jim Martin—all from the United States. The new coaching system alone was valued at $45,000 in salaries.

Ti-Cats' coach Carl Voyles said his offensive formation, with Nobby running for the first time since he donned the double blue uniform in Toronto, is the "Miami series."

Swiacki refused to name his formation, but both hinge on the split-T, introduced by Darrel Royal, late coach of the Edmonton Eskimos.

Argos have two of the greatest running backs in Canadian football, Dick Shatto and J. C. Caroline. Pro linemen are Billy Shipp, Bill Albright and Gil Mains. Chuck Holmes is a steady 70-yard punter.

The potential of the Argos is great, but recent polls place them third in the Big Four league.

Swiacki isn't saying anything except, "We'll have an interesting team for the fans."

LOS ANGELES—Lauro Salas, 127½, Los Angeles, stopped Epifanio Garcia, 127¾, Mexico (7).

Al's Face 'Cousin' Roughies

MONTREAL (BUP)—The defending Big Four champion Montreal Alouettes, with quarterback Sam Etcheverry the only sure backfield starter, kick-off the 1955 grid season on Saturday against the "revamped" Ottawa Rough Riders.

A crowd in excess of 22,000 was expected to jam Molson Stadium for the season's opener against last year's "cousins," who won only two of 12 contests last year, including an upset victory of the Als.

Montreal presented much the same line-up that won 10 of 12 games last year and lost the Grey Cup game to Edmonton in a 26-25 thriller. Notable absentees were big Alex Webster, the Big Four's scoring and rushing leader, now with the New York Giants of the National Football League; end and place-kicking specialist Ray Poole, retired; and fullback Virgil Wagner.

Coach Doug (Peahead) Walker, beginning his fourth year as head coach of the Larks, was forced to field a makeshift backfield. Chuck Hunsinger was out of the line-up with a pulled groin muscle. Fullback John Anderson, a man of all work from U. Kansas, was sidelined with a leg injury. Canadian Bill Bewley figured to replace Hunsinger and Bob Westlake, a recent acquisition from Ottawa, filled in for Anderson. Pat Abbruzzi, a fireplug back from Rhode Island state, will try to fill Webster's big shoes.

Coast Ship Probers Face Arduous Study

By MONTE ROBERTS

The three members of the royal commission on coasting trade, and their battery of technical advisers, face a long and arduous chore before they present any sort of solution for Canada's muddled shipping industry.

At their west coast sittings in Victoria and Vancouver they are adding to a mass of suggestions and proposals, many of them contradictory.

In the course of sittings in the maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba, Mr. Justice W. F. Spence, chairman, and his associates have been presented with arguments ranging far from the confines of purely "coasting" trade.

MANY SUBJECTS

The commision has found itself considering railway freight rates, the coal industry in Nova Scotia, wheat movements from the prairies, and B.C.'s lumber industry.

But those appearing before the commission keep returning to two main points:

Should the shipbuilding and shipowning industries in Canada be subsidized?

Should coasting trade be restricted to Canadian-built, Canadian-registered ships?

On the question of subsidies, many different interests feel they are necessary. Shipbuilding firms, labor unions and the B.C. government have all asked for subsidies to maintain at least a nucleus of skilled workers in case expansion is needed in time of emergency.

On the question of restrictions, however, the commission has been finding sharp disagreement.

Proponents of restriction say it is necessary to protect the shipping industry (both shipbuilding and ship-operating) from foreign competition.

Opponents say Canada's coastal trade must be left open to all Commonwealth bottoms to assure us of cheap transportation.

Mr. Justice Spence has summed up the problem facing his commission thus: "All these opposing and mutually exclusive arguments have their validity, and we must resolve between them."

It will be several months before the result will be released in a report to the government of Canada.

Ordinations Lag Far Behind Anglican Need

Only 70 Per Year To Fill 150 Posts

EDMONTON (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada needs more than twice as many clergymen each year than are being graduated from Canadian colleges.

In a report of the commission on the candidates for holy orders given the synod Thursday, acting chairman R. S. K. Seeley, provost of Trinity College, Toronto, said the church needs at least 150 men ordained to the ministry annually. About 70 are being ordained each year.

"The supply of clergy is a comparatively new problem," he said. "We have drawn heavily on England, Ireland and other sources, but we now have reached a stage where we must provide an indigenous ministry for the greater part of our work."

The problem was being accentuated by the rapid increase in the Canadian population.

Provost Seeley said too much stress has been laid on the poverty and hardship of the life of the clergy and the rewards insufficiently realized.

WANT ONLY BEST

He stressed the necessity of refusing to accept for the ministry all but the best even "if we have to leave parishes vacant for a period of time."

At the evening session the synod considered adoption of a flag but set the matter over for further discussion today. The proposed flag is St. George's Cross, with either a gold or green maple leaf in either the upper left hand corner or the centre of the cross.

A cheque for $50,000 was presented by the synod to Rt. Rev. John Charles Daly, recently-appointed bishop in Korea for use in mission work there.

Bishop Daly, 52, said he hoped to use the funds to develop an indigenous leadership for the church in Korea.

At earlier sessions Thursday delegates considered the report of the missionary society of the Canadian church.

The synod approved record expenditures of $712,178 for mission work in 1956, an increase of more than $100,000 over 1955. Major portion of this $461,703 was for work in Canada. A total of $158,750 was authorized for overseas missionary work.

Guaranteed Wage Pact Signed by American Motors

DETROIT (UP) — American Motors and the CIO United Auto Workers' Union today agreed on a new three-year contract which extended the guaranteed wage to the auto industry's "Little Three."

The settlement automatically signalled the end of an eight-hour strike by 24,000 American Motors' employees at seven plants in Michigan and Wisconsin.

They went on strike when a midnight deadline passed without an agreement.

With only slight variations, the new American Motors' contract follows the Chrysler contract negotiated Thursday and those negotiated earlier this summer with Ford and General Motors.

Former Victoria Clergyman Dead

A former Victoria clergyman, Rev. Arthur William Collins, 73, died in a recent accident in England, friends here learned Thursday.

He was curate of Christ Church Cathedral in charge of St. Matthias' Church in 1921 and 1922, and rector on Salt Spring Island until 1926. He later served the church at Whonnock, Chilliwack, and North Vancouver.

He is survived by his widow at Fonthill Gifford, near Salisbury, in Wiltshire.

Sweden Visit in June Set for Queen, Duke

LONDON (AP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will make a state visit to Stockholm next June, Buckingham Palace announced Thursday night.

"The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh have accepted with much pleasure an invitation from King and Queen of Sweden to pay a state visit to Stokholm on June 8 and 9, 1956," the announcement said.

"Her Majesty and His Royal Highness will arrive in Sweden in Her Majesty's yacht Britannia on the first of these days, and will stay at the royal palace in Stockholm until Sunday, June 10.

"Thereafter, they intend to stay privately on board the royal yacht in order to be present during the Olympic equestrian competitions."

King Gustav of Sweden, who will be 73 in November, and Queen Louise, who is an aunt of the Duke of Edinburgh, made a four-day state visit to London last summer.

King Gustav and Queen Louise made a private visit to London from May 16 to June 2 this year.

The equestrian competitions of the Olympic Games will take place at Stockholm from June 11 to 17 next year. Riders will not compete in Australia, where the 1956 Olympiad will take place, because of strict Australian quarantine laws controlling the import of horses.

In another development, Buckingham Palace announced that the Queen has cancelled a ball at Balmoral Castle, scheduled for Thursday night, because of reports of polio in Scotland.

Timber Firm Opens District To Game Clubs

Mid-Island Groups Will Patrol Boulder Creek Area for Season

CHEMAINUS—Under an agreement approved this week by MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., Chemainus division, game club members in the Mid-Island district will be able to hunt in the Boulder Creek area behind Copper Canyon this season.

An agreement has been worked out between representatives of game clubs in Chemainus, Ladysmith and Duncan, and MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd. whereby members of the respective clubs will have access for the first time to roads leading to the Boulder Creek area.

The game clubs in turn will be responsible for patroling the area during the hunting season; checking and admitting only members of the clubs involved; issuing hunting passes and permits to travel on company logging roads; disciplinary action against hunters violating the agreement, and other hunting restrictions.

USE BRANCH ROADS

Hunters will be able to drive their cars on the Boulder Creek and Watson Creek roads, and other branch roads in the area.

No hunting will be allowed within a half-mile of camp, and 1,500 feet of active logging sites.

All hunters wishing to hunt in the area will be eligible for patrol and general gate duty throughout the season. Permits are needed to travel on company logging roads and to hunt in the area. In addition, all hunters must sign a form agreeing to abide by restrictions laid down by the company and the clubs themselves. Anyone found violating the agreement will be blacklisted by the clubs and will not be allowed to hunt in the area again.

All hunting and road-travel permits will be valid only on holidays and week-ends when the area is not declared closed.

Federal Works Engineer Sees Mooring Site

Mission Purely 'Fact Finding'

LADYSMITH—R. B. Angus, an engineer from the Federal Department of Public Works, visited Ladysmith Wednesday to inspect a site proposed by the industrial development committee of the Chamber of Commerce for a small-boat basin.

Accompanied by Mayor Len Ryan, John MacNaughton, chairman of the industrial development committee, and Carl Walker and William Ingram, committee members, Mr. Angus toured the whole of the waterfront from the old smelter property south to the government wharf.

At the conclusion of the tour, Mr. Angus said that he would prepare a report on his findings which would be submitted to the chief engineer in Ottawa. He commended the committee upon the amount of groundwork which had been done in advance of his visit and said that the information made available to him on his arrival would be of great assistance in preparing his report.

He emphasized, however, that his visit was purely a fact finding mission and that the decision as to what action, if any, would be taken, would be made by the department.

Courtenay Ice Rink Plans Completed

COURTENAY (CP) — Plans to build an ice centre in Courtenay have been completed and work is expected to begin soon, officials of the Comox Valley Fair board announced Thursday. The building is expected to cost approximately $90,000 and will have an ice surface of 87 feet wide by 144 feet long. Money for the project will be obtained by a bond issue to be floated at an early date.

Cortes Island Brief Scores Ship Service

Canadians Must Take U.S. Citizenship To Extend Operations, Commission Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Residents of tiny Cortez island, 125 miles northwest of here, Thursday called for a board to be set up to remove confusion shrouding the regulation of freight and passenger service.

E. J. Anderson, representing 450 residents of the island, testified at the Royal Commission on coasting trade that freight deliveries were costly and unsatisfactory, rates uncertain and passenger service poor. The island lies east of Campbell River.

A brief from the B. C. Loggers' Association opposed any change in the present laws governing coastwise shipping. James Sheasgreen, logging manager of Crown Zellerbach of Canada, Ltd., said any new restrictions would increase cost of the logging industry.

"The burden of supporting shipyards should be borne by the country as a whole, not solely by the people on the coast," he said.

Wednesday, Capt. O. H. "Sparky" New, told the commission:

"One Vancouver tugboat owner has become an American citizen and others are considering a similar move in order to enlarge the scope of their towboat operations."

He said Americans were allowed to form Canadian corporations and operate a fleet of ships in Canada.

"But Canadians cannot sit as directors of the American ship companies. This means that if it is advantageous for a Canadian to operate a fleet in both Canada and the United States, he has to become an American citizen."

Capt. New was speaking for the B. C. Towboat Owners' Association which operates 350 tugs, 450 scows and barges and 20 floating derricks.

Belt Buckle Saves Life Of Millhand

WHALETOWN, B.C. (CP)—A belt buckle is credited with saving the life of Thomas Windt of Quesnel when he was struck in the stomach by a slab of wood while working in a sawmill at this Cortes Island centre.

Windt suffered severe pains and his buckle was bent nearly double. The slab hit a saw and flew back, striking him in the stomach.

Shortly after the accident he was advised that he had been awarded the first bursary in agriculture at the University of B.C. given by the Women's Institutes of B.C.

Next Tuesday the boys will be the guests of the Chemainus Scout Troop. They will swim and lunch at Kinsmen park, then will be taken on a tour of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., Chemainus Division. They will return to Maple Bay by boat, where they will be entertained by members of the Duncan Troop.

Ladysmith City Council Plans Improvements in Water System

LADYSMITH—A special meeting of the city council will be held next week to plan improvements to the local water distribution system, it was decided at the regular meeting of the council Wednesday night.

Ald. Allan Carey, chairman of the waterworks committee, reported that he had discussed the question with A. R. Colby, consulting engineer who reported on the whole system recently, and that Mr. Colby had recommended that the city proceed on a pay-as-you-go basis if at all possible.

He said Mr. Colby had also recommended that the city take its supply from the main at a point above the present valve house and link it with the distribution system at Sixth Avenue. He believed that this would eliminate the need for pressure reducing valves and that if an eight-inch main were laid along Sixth Avenue, it would increase the pressure in the system in the area of the High School.

R. S. Wood, city treasurer, reported that by using reserve funds plus the operating surplus from this year, the water utility would have close to $12,000 available for this project.

AID SCHOOL BOARD

The council decided to invite Mr. Colby to the special meeting next week when these recommendations could be discussed with him in detail.

In a letter to the council the district school board asked if the city works department would be prepared to hard-surface a volleyball court and a driveway on the high school grounds, and asked for an estimate of the cost if the city will do the work. The letter was referred to Ald. P. R. Battie, chairman of the works department.

The council endorsed a request by the Courtenay Volunteer Fire Department that the motor vehicle branch establish a fund to help pay for ambulance service to highway accidents.

COVERS FALSE ALARMS

In a letter to the city the Courtenay department said that it has been impossible to collect for many such calls because they have been false alarms, because the patient has been removed by private car before the ambulance arrives, or because the patient either can not or will not pay.

Mr. Wood said that the city has no such unpaid accounts on its books, but that the problem could easily arise in the future.

Ald. Battie reported that all members of the works department staff will have completed their summer holiday by the end of this week.

PARKSVILLE (CP)—Two fish on one line were caught here by Harold McIntyre, a crew member of HMCS Ontario.

Out fishing with Alec Young of Parksville, McIntyre hooked an eight-pound spring salmon and as he brought the fish in a 30-pound ling cod grabbed the salmon and hung on.

The two men managed to get both fish into the boat by gaffing the big cod as it came to the surface.

New Ladysmith Primary School Hoped Ready for Use Oct. 15

LADYSMITH — T. B. McArravy, Nanaimo architect in charge of construction of the new Ladysmith Elementary School, told the district school board this week that he was "reasonably sure the new building would be ready for occupancy by Oct. 15."

The board telephoned Mr. McArravy from the meeting when Trustee A. E. Beasley contended that the people of the district should be given a definite completion date for the building.

This will mean that the swing shift, inaugurated early this year when the old Annex building was demolished, will be resumed for about six weeks at Market Square School.

GOOD PROGRESS

Trustee Pete Seaton, chairman of the building committee, reported that the major renovating program at Chemainus Elementary School is progressing well and should be completed by school opening.

"It's a different looking building on the inside," he said, reporting that the committee is well pleased with the result.

In a written report to the board, Ken Reid, superintendent of janitors, listed a program of painting, varnishing and minor repairs which he has carried out during the summer holiday season in all other schools in the district.

With all these repairs and renovations, plus the fact that a new oil-burning furnace has been installed in The Diamond School, the board was satisfied that its buildings will be in good shape for school opening next week.

All vacancies on the district teaching staff have been filled, and the cost of finding replacements was greatly reduced this year, the board learned. In past years the board has spent as much as $1,300 on advertisements in daily papers seeking staff, but this year replacements were obtained through a bulletin issued jointly by the Trustees' Association and the Teachers' Federation at a cost of only $300.

A letter from the registrar of the department of education informed the board that Mrs. G. H. Dickson, who went to Ethiopia to teach for a year, will not be able to stay there because of the altitude. He stated that if her position in this district has been filled for the year, he will endeavor to find another position in B.C. for her.

Mrs. Dickson was granted one year's leave of absence by the board and the vacancy so created has been filled.

Trustees Seaton, Chamberlin and Beasley were named as a committee to make a further investigation into the possibility of obtaining a water supply for Mount Brenton School in Saltair. Until a supply can be located the school can not be enlarged.

Pacific Water Wells reported to the board that a well had been drilled to a depth of 230 feet at North Oyster School and a charge of blasting powder had been set off in the hole without producing any water.

This company undertook to drill the well on the understanding that there would be no cost to the district if an adequate supply of water was not found.

Government, Corporate Borrowings Up 5½ Per Cent

TORONTO (BUP)—Canadian corporation and governments at all levels borrowed $1,545,165,000 from the public so far this year, Wood Gundy and Co., a Toronto investment firm, said in a report today.

The figure is more than 5½ per cent higher than bond financing in the first eight months of 1954, the report added.

Federal government bond financing was down this year from last on long-term bonds, but it was up for short-term borrowings of two years or less.

The company said Quebec and Maritime municipal governments increased their public borrowings from $88,758,000 in the first eight months of 1954, to $102,169,000 this year. The increase was mainly in municipal bond issues for school buildings and public utility expansion.

The Wood, Gundy figures showed a major drop in corporation bond issues in the first eight months of this year—down from last year's $428,787,000 to $357,532,000.

The decline was the result of the high level of public borrowing done by industry last year when a great many new plants and additions to old ones were started, the report said.

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP) — Good export interest in flax featured the trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange. Seaboard houses were active buyers. There were reports of good overseas business to the United Kingdom and continent.

Oats and barley prices moved narrowly. A few domestic shipping orders appeared in both grains. Rye prices held to a narrow range in trade that was light and local.

Lakehead prices for IWA and domestic No. 1 durums advanced one-eighth cent from Thursday. Other wheat prices were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP)—Grains held within narrow price limits on the board of trade today, showing a slight tendency to ease. Dealings were quiet.

R. W. Denson Made Partner of Accountancy Firm

Appointment of R. William Denson, of Victoria, as resident partner here in the chartered accountancy firm of R. J. Casson & Company, has been announced from Vancouver.

Mr. Denson, a graduate of the University of Sask., in 1949, became a chartered accountant in June, 1952, in Regina. He came to Victoria early this year after working with the federal department of income tax in that prairie city.

R. J. Casson & Co., this week moved its Victoria office to 620 View Street.

TODAY'S MARKET SUMMARIES

Seagram Goes to $45.50, New High

TORONTO (CP)—Industrial issues stepped further ahead in mid-afternoon trading at the Toronto Stock Exchange today, setting their fourth record index high of the session.

Base metals and western oils firmed lightly. Golds were easier.

Best industrial demand was for papers, steels, financial institutions, textiles, manufactures and foods. A+ new highs were Distillers Seagram, up 2⅝ to 45½; Canada Wire and Cable B, ahead 2½ to 20; Stelco, up 1½ to 55; and United Fuel Investments B preferred, 1⅛ better at 31⅛.

Some narrow gains in base metals moved the group's index ahead a fraction. Advances seldom went beyond 10 cents. Profit-taking left a number of issues easier.

There was little action among uraniums. A few penny advances were recorded.

Bailey-Selburn, Anglo-Canadian, Chamberlain, Federated Pete, Canadian Homestead and Central Leduc led western oil winners.

Prairie Oil and Gas, Gridoil and Rio-Palmer each slipped about 20 cents.

Biggest change is golds went to Thompson-Lundmark, up 20 at $2.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks clung to moderate gains in the pre-holiday lull late this afternoon.

Advances ran to about two points but many issues shaded their best prices as trading slowed down.

Volume for the day was estimated at 1,700,000 shares.

All major divisions improved and the industrial bracket was well ahead.

Chemicals were pretty solidly up. Rails were mostly higher by fractions and coppers advanced.

Among Canadian issues, Distillers Seagram moved ahead 1½, Hiram Walker advanced ¾ and Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were both up ⅛. Dome Mines declined ⅛.

Lake Shore gained ⅛ and Royalite Oil was unchanged on the American exchange.

MONTREAL (CP) — Gains ruled the industrial and mining lists in a moderately active session on the stock market today.

Feature of the session was Seagrams, up 3⅝ at a new peak of 45½ in a movement of 3,218 shares.

Mines improved while western oils were slightly higher.

Industrials volume was 36,200 shares and mines 698,100.

VANCOUVER — The market was active with prices steadily rising.

Van-Tor sold 15,000 going to $1 from 95. Chamberlain Oil traded 8,500 between 40 and 44. Gas Explorations moved 6,000 at 89. Beaver Lodge sold 6,000 at 66. Canadian Collieries moved 2,025 between $1.05 and $1.14. Yankee Princess sold 9,000 ranging from 72 to 75. Giant Mascot moved 3,500 at 77. Indian Mines traded 5,000 at 6½. Jackson Basin sold 23,300 going to 43. National Explorations traded 5,000 between $1 and $1.07. Western Potash sold 17,500 going to 75. Yale Lead sold 7,000 between 60 and 65. Mackino sold 2,000 up to 64.

LONDON (Reuters) — With incentive completely lacking in anticipation of this afternoon's gold and dollar reserve statement, the London stock markets continued to drift lower today.

Talks on a higher bank rate in the near future continued to dominate government issues, and fresh falls of up to five-eighths of a point were recorded.

Falls again predominated in industrials, but rarely exceeded one shilling. Golds dropped back on profit-taking after opening steady. Leading oils started firm but reacted later.

Tight Credit Blamed For Volume Decline

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street is watching the trend of volume in the market as it tries to plot the future.

January set the year's high and the first week of 1955 was its best with the average daily volume above 4,000,000 shares. August set the year's low with the daily average falling below 2,000,000 shares.

Market experts in the bullish camp like a quiet market when prices are falling and they like an active one when the price trend is upward.

Recently the dullness has reflected caution on the credit situation which is receiving a lot of market attention—not that the market is based on enough credit to shake a stick at but because tight money is considered bad psychologically.

Despite the recent decline in volume, the year 1955 still is the biggest since 1933.

The full year 1955 is sure to set a new high in trading since 1933 too unless daily volume falls below 540,000 shares, which isn't seen as likely.

Market men assert that there is a supply area around present price levels in the industrial average.

MURDER CHARGE—Arrested and charged with the recent slaying of Benjamin (Benny) Spillerman, Cardinal, Ont., dry-goods merchant, is 17-year-old Ronald Reid, also of Cardinal. The youth, who was arrested in the living room of his home, is said to have a fondness for crime-type comic books and was reading one when police made the arrest. Spillerman's battered, bullet-ridden body was found inside his shop less than 100 yards from the Reid home.

Suicide's Diary To Reach Probe

Police Supt. Whelan's Notebooks Available Soon, Tupper Tells Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police recruiting has dropped off since the R. H. Tupper royal commission has been investigating all phases of the force's activities, acting chief Alan Rossiter said Thursday.

The tall, lean officer, who also denied a report that he had received favors in the form of a television set, said:

"During this inquiry, the response has been very poor" to recruiting of replacement officers. He said "the figures will be available at the city hall personnel office."

"Before, because of the numbers applying, it was thought an experiment should be tried in raising the education requirement from grade 10 to grade 12."

He said the experiment was unsuccessful.

Previous calls for recruits had brought up to 125 applications for each 17 to 25 vacancies in police schools.

CALLS FOR NOTEBOOKS

He was heard after Neil Fleishman, counsel for Flash reporter Ray Munro, called for the notebooks of the late Supt. Harry Whelan to be produced.

Mr. Tupper said they would be brought forward as soon as they were returned by the RCMP to the Attorney-General's department in Victoria.

Acting chief Rossiter denied a story published June 23 in the Toronto tabloid and suggesting in question form that before his promotion from traffic sergeant he was given an expensive television set by vice-president W. C. Mainwaring of B.C. Electric Co.

The article suggested the acting chief had paid $10 for the set to show he did not get it for nothing and was headed: "TV caper rearing ugly head in comedy of errors."

TOLD MULLIGAN

Under cross-examination, acting-chief Rossiter said he mentioned to chief Walter Mulligan that he was thinking of buying a television set.

Mr. Fleishman asked:

"Did you tell the chief that you had the opportunity of getting a television set free and he said, 'No, you had better pay $10 for it?'"

"No," said acting-chief Rossiter.

The acting chief produced a cancelled cheque to show that he had paid $250 for the set, then testified that subsequent appraisal disclosed it to be worth $138.50.

Mr. Fleishman said he understood the late Supt. Harry Whelan was present at the meeting between Supt. Rossiter and chief Mulligan and that his notebooks would show what was said.

Before acting chief Rossiter was questioned, commissioner Tupper adjourned the second phase of the hearing indefinitely. It dealt with charges by police union officials that force morale was low as a result of maladministration.

During his testimony, the acting chief countered the charge, saying:

"It must be understood when a man joined the force that there is less chance of promotion and less chance of supplying them with incentive than many businesses.

"... A happy police officer is a rarity," he said, "but believe it or not, there are such men on our force."

The population of the Greater Victoria area is estimated to have grown by 7.7 per cent in the past four years.

CONVICTED MP DISQUALIFIED

ENNISKILLEN, Northern Ireland (Reuters)—A Northern Ireland court today declared an imprisoned Sinn Feiner's election to the British Parliament invalid and awarded the seat to his Conservative opponent.

Philip Clarke, 21-year-old Irish Nationalist serving a 10-year term in Belfast prison for taking part in a republican raid on a British army barracks, defeated Lt.-Col. Robert G. Grosvenor in last May's general election by a 261-vote majority.

Grosvenor, a 45-year-old business man, petitioned the court that votes cast for Clarke were invalid, since he was known at the time of the election to be disqualified. No convicted felon may sit in the House of Commons.

Fernie Fire Destroys Three Homes

FERNIE, B.C. (CP)—A fire that raged out of control for two hours here Thursday destroyed three houses, several sheds and a barn.

The blaze started in a shed and spread to adjoining buildings while firemen stood by helpless when their hoses could not reach the nearest hydrants.

B.C. Forestry Service equipment was finally brought in to quell the fire.

The houses destroyed belonged to James Seddon, William Slemko and Alex Hrnycka.

No one was injured.

There were 332,000 families averaging 3.3 persons per family in 1954. The total at the 1951 census was 299,845.

Murderer Coffin Refused Appeal; Cabinet Commutation Last Hope

OTTAWA (CP) — Wilbert Coffin, Gaspe prospector, today was denied leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada his conviction for murder in the killing of an American hunter two years ago.

Coffin, sentenced to death, is scheduled to be hanged at Montreal's Bordeaux jail, Sept. 23.

Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott rejected Coffin's application for leave to appeal his conviction by a 12-man jury in Perce, Que., Aug. 5, 1954.

He was convicted of murdering Richard Lindsey, 17, one of three Holidaysburg, Pa., hunters whose bear-gnawed remains were found in the Gaspe Peninsula bush 13 months earlier.

The two other hunters were Lindsey's father, Eugene, 47, and a companion, Frederick Claar, 19.

Coffin will be hanged unless the cabinet orders a commutation of sentence, the only remaining course that can save him from the noose.

He sought to appeal on a dozen points of law, including the claim that he should have been tried by an all-English jury instead of by six French and six English-speaking jurors.

Farmers OK Wheat Sales To Poland

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sales of western wheat by the Canadian wheat board to Poland have been approved by the directors of the three Canadian wheat pools.

In a statement issued today the pools said that the board of directors of Alberta wheat pool, Saskatchewan wheat pool and Manitoba wheat pool elevators, assembled in an inter-provincial pool meeting in Winnipeg, considered reported sales of substantial quantities of Canadian wheat to Poland, and possibilities of further sales in the future—if concentration on industrialization changes Poland from an exporter to an importer of wheat.

"The united directors of the three pools—representing 200,000 western grain growers—have advised Trade Minister C. D. Howe that they fully approve the action taken by the government to effect financial arrangements; and the the Canadian wheat board in making such sales," the statement said.

Instructor Dies As Plane Crashes Into Backyard

TORONTO (CP)—A small aircraft Thursday night bounced off a rooftop and crashed in a yard in a wealthy residential section of suburban Scarborough.

The chief flying instructor for Central Airways was killed and a second man aboard the plane was severely injured. No residents in the area were hit.

Mrs. A. E. Langan ran for her life when the plane nosed into the yard and missed her by 10 feet. The single-engine Cessna slid along the ground for 50 yards and struck the woman's house.

Killed in the smash-up was Terrence Kenny. Henry Aw, a student pilot, was taken to hospital in critical condition.

Set Fee for First Visit Of Lawyers' Clients Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Bar Association may be asked to consider a recommendation that lawyers charge a flat fee for clients' initial visits.

Edson L. Haines of Toronto, chairman of the CBA's public relations section, told a section meeting Thursday that "persons in lower income brackets are going to real-estate brokers and parish priests for legal advice simply because they are afraid of legal fees."

The section adopted a formal motion which the resolutions committee will be asked to send to Saturday's general meeting for consideration. It recommends the flat fee principle but leaves the amount to county lawyers' association.

In a report to a CBA executive meeting last March at Montebello, Que., Mr. Haines suggested a $5 fee.

He said Thursday if a known fee were charged the legal profession's public relations would be improved.

"A United States poll found the average man thought we charged up to $75 for an interview," he said. Many lawyers charged nothing for an initial interview, but this was not always known.

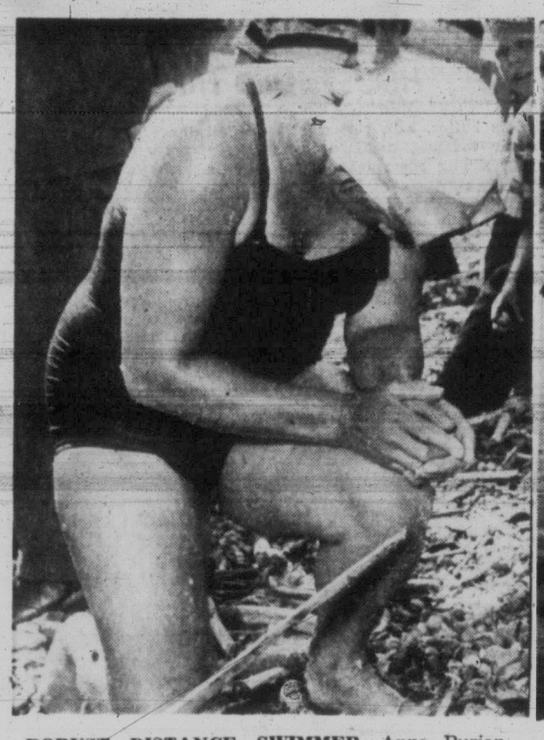
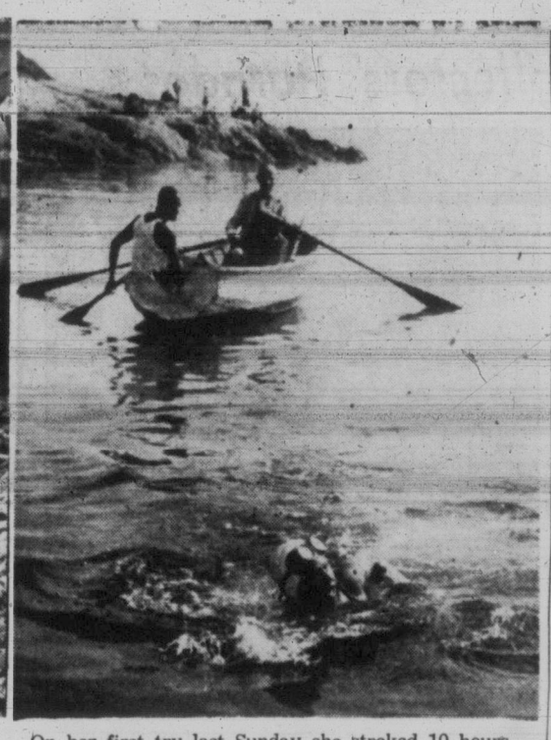
VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1955





ROBUST DISTANCE SWIMMER, Anna Burian, knelt humbly on the gravel at Horseshoe Bay Thursday afternoon to pray for strength in her second attempt to swim Juan de Fuca Strait. She was halted by rough water driven before a southwesterly wind after swimming strongly for four hours, 26 minutes. On her first try last Sunday she stroked 10 hours, 45 minutes but lacked a favorable tide. In photo at right the Vancouver nurse is shown in stroke just before she started her marathon guided by men in rowboat, Archie Alleyne (left) and D. Y. Gorrie, Vancouver. Saanich Leading Boom in Building

District Permits Near $3,000,000 for Month

Permits for buildings worth almost $3,000,000 were issued by the four municipalities of Greater Victoria last month—and Saanich led them all.

New construction in Saanich last month totalled $1,227,850, more than 100 per cent increase over the same month last year.

Building figures continued to soar generally in Greater Victoria throughout the month of August.

Increases over the same month last year were also recorded in the city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Partly due to the fact that schools worth $1,700,000 are currently under way in the area, the boom shows increases over August last year of 34 per cent in Victoria, 88 per cent in Oak Bay, 84 per cent in Esquimalt and 107 per cent in Saanich.

In Saanich there were 79 new homes started in August, the same number as August last year. So far in 1955, 565 dwellings have been started, where in 1954 the total to date was 471.

Expansion in Saanich so far this year has reached $4,948,065 and 844 permits have been issued for new constructions, alterations and additions.

In Oak Bay the building figure to August 31 is $2,128,892. The total for August was $237,016.

Esquimalt issued 16 permits in August for $146,695 in construction. Total to date this year is $772,155 compared with $418,030 at this time a year ago.

Victoria building figures mounted again in August after a slump the month previous. Total building permits for August was $549,484.

The eight-month total for the city is $6,546,539 compared with the total for the same period last year of $5,546,412.

SEASICK SWIMMER MAY GIVE UP STRAIT ATTEMPTS

Chances are that strait-challenger Douglas Rivette, who failed today in an early morning bid on the turbulent waters, will call the whole thing off.

He said today he may try the strait again in "10 or 15 days" or perhaps "not at all."

He plunged in off Macaulay Point at 4.30 a.m. and swam only a short distance.

"I got seasick," he said.

Mr. Rivette said after his second attempt that it was a waste of time and money to bother with navigators on the swim.

Hunting Okay As Fire Danger Eases in Woods

Forest Closure Now Unlikely

B.C.'s forest fire hazard has eased off, and the threat of a woods closure is lessening, according to forest service officials.

Hunting season will begin as scheduled Saturday, even though a fairly high degree of hazard exists on Vancouver Island.

"We will have a review of the situation Tuesday," a Forest Service official said. "We will know better then whether to keep the woods open or apply restrictions."

The Forest Service reported today that only a "moderate hazard" exists throughout the province.

THREE FIRES

Only three major fires are still burning, and they are under control. Some 59 men are moving toward the centre of a blaze in rough country near Boston Bar, which has burned over 200 acres.

Mopping up operations are underway at two fires on southern Vancouver Island, one on the Malahat, the other at Metchosin.

Only 39 fires are burning throughout the province, of which some 28 are sawdust pile fires.

The fire situation had reached the critical stage on Wednesday. Forests Minister R. E. Sommers issued a warning that a general closure would be put into effect next week unless the week-end brought a general easing of conditions.

Labor Day week-end campers and hunters out for the opening of the blue grouse and band-tailed pigeon season Saturday, are still requested to use utmost caution in the woods.

Some large logging firms have shut down operations, while others are keeping civilians off their operations until the fire threat eases still more.

UNNOTICED

California Wines Sold In B.C. Now

California wines, object of years of controvesry in B.C., have slipped onto the shelves of the province's liquor stores almost unnoticed.

Wines from south of the border had been banned from B.C. by an unofficial government decree since the end of prohibition. This spring, Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced lifting of the ban.

For more than two months now, two types of California wines have been on sale at B.C. Liquor Control Board stores.

They are brands of a golden sherry, and a muscatel. Both sell for $1.75, a price above those of many domestic and Empire brands.

LCB officials say sales of the two wines have "not been especially noticeable."

CIVIC VISIT

Mayor Guest At Barbeque, Port Angeles

Mayor Claude Harrison will journey to Port Angeles on Saturday both as a guest at a community barbeque and to lay informally the foundations for inter-city celebrations announced earlier.

He said this morning that he was invited to the barbeque during the ceremonies held in connection with commencement of the Washington States Ferries between the two cities.

But he added that he will also visit Mayor Ivor Smith of Port Angeles on the proposed annual two-city get-togethers.

Last month the mayor announced that subsequent to the Bert Thomas strait victory it was suggested that something should be done to bring Victorians and Port Angeles citizens closer together.

Initial plans called for a holiday on each side of the border with whole populations hosting the other. All phases of social activity were to be included in the plans.

Port Angeles civic authorities expressed interest in the project as did business, church and social leaders here.

MAYOR PADDLES HIS OWN CANOE

A beautiful hand-carved and decorated Indian canoe paddle fashioned from featherweight cedar was presented to Mayor Claude Harrison Thursday.

Donors were a native Indian couple who waited for the mayor to appear outside city hall. They did not give their names, but explained that the woman had carved the paddle herself.

"It will take you over many rough places," she said.

Mayor Harrison said he will use the paddle to propel a canoe over Elk and Beaver Lakes when he officiates at the Labor Day swim Monday.

BETWEEN TIMES

By JUDY BOOTS STREAK

Well I guess you are surprised that I am writing a column after all when The Old Man said he didn't think I would ever write a column.

In fact maybe you are even wondering who I am well I am Judy Boots Streak popularly known as J.B. the female-type dog who lives at The Old Man's house.

And I have very carefully not written a column for a long time because if I write columns it makes The Old Man even lazier than he is and he does not need any encouragement as far as laziness goes and besides which why should I work for my bed and bone when I get my bed and bone whether I work or not that is my philosophy of life what is yours tell me about it some other time I have something else on my mind.

Where was I? (Pardon me if I appear to digress occasionally. The reason I appear to digress is I DO digress. I'm a female-type, you know.)

Oh yes. Well the reason I am writing a column today is not to help out The Old Man but to help out the Mayor of Victoria. The reason I wish to help out the Mayor of Victoria there was a piece in the paper yesterday saying there was opposition to the mayor's pet project, which is a model yacht pool at Holland Point.

And if there is anything I hate, it is the idea of opposition to the model yacht pool. So that is why I am writing this column, to urge one and all to hurry to the support of the mayor's project, a place in which model yacht owners can sail model yachts.

There is nothing Victoria needs more than a pool for sailing toy boats. Too many toy boat owners are compelled to sail them in the bathtub. Some really enthusiastic toy boat owners now spend so much time in the bathtub they not only have water on the knee, but on the brain, too.

Thus it is easy to see there is only one solution namely the mayor's pet project a pool for the sailing of model yachts.

Besides, think of how this pool would add to the beauty of Victoria and also think of what a lovely, sensible way it is to get rid of $21,000 of the capital city grant.

Now, you may wonder why a female-type dog like me should be rushing pell mell into civic affairs like this. Well, I will level with you as they say in the gangster movies. I will tell you the truth.

I have a selfish interest in the pool for sailing model yachts. The ordinary water along the Dallas Road waterfront is really much too cold, and not especialy clean, either.

A two foot deep pool for the sailing of model yachts would also be ideal for the wading and swimming of dogs.

And already the Holland Point & Adjacent Areas Canine Recreation Aquatic club is laying plans to make the fullest possible use of the new pool.

Believe me.

So I am asking all public spirited citizens to support the mayor's pet project.

Us pets are all for it, too.

Surprise Wind Beats Burian

Waves Too Tough for Swimmer's Coach Boat

By AB KENT

Concern for the safety of her coach boat in wind-whipped Juan de Fuca Strait led Vienna-born Anna Burian to quit her second try to swim to Port Angeles Thursday.

She had been in the water four hours, 26 minutes and was a little more than four miles south east of Horseshoe Bay where she started at 4 p.m.

The Vancouver nurse contemplated a third try, but it will not likely be made until next year.

"I have to go back to work first," she said aboard her navigation vessel, Burrard Chief, skippered by Capt. Ellice Cavin.

Encouraged for the first 2½ hours by a slick, glossy sea and promise of a six-hour ebb tide beginning around 6.30, the swimmer ran into tough opposition the last two hours when a south westerly wind at 8-15 m.p.h. sprang up.

Rower D. Y. Gorrie, Vancouver, and trainer Archie Alleyne, British Guianese naturopath were tossed wildly by the churning water and tried to keep their gyrations out of sight of Anna, who they knew would worry.

But she saw the rowboat being flung about.

"I watched that boat go up and up and I thought it would never come down. It's no use to take chances like that with lives at stake," the swimmer said.

She explained her crew was having so much trouble with the boat she had to slow her rapid 64-68 per minute stroke to allow the boat to catch up.

"When you swim so slow you get very cold. I have to stroke 60 at least. It was no use."

A devout Catholic, Anna visited a church before going aboard the Burrard Chief shortly after 3 p.m., then when she was ready to leave Horseshoe Bay she knelt and made a silent prayer.

The deep-tanned, dark-haired woman wore a cross on her swim suit bodice and as she left the Burrard Chief for the beach said to those aboard:

"Don't forget to say a prayer for me."

She showed early concern for her small boat.

"Is it not too dangerous for the boat?" she called at 7.40 to Capt. Cavin. "I don't want anything to happen to them."

Anna was then about three miles south of Trial Island, and had begun to move southwest by south on the ebb.

She again called the Chief, which was leading, at 8.25.

"I want to call it off," Anna said. "It's too rough for the boat." Mr. Gorrie assured her: "We're all right; fine. Go ahead."

She still worried about the 76-year-old former mountaineer, skier and rower. Mr. Gorrie was persuaded to give up his place in the rowboat to Hunter Poole, a crew member of the Chief.

"Does that satisfy you?" Anna was asked.

She did not reply, but touched the rowboat at 8.26.

AIR-CONDITIONED ESKIMOS BEAT HEAT AT SCOUT MEET

These scouts were "real cool."

That's the trio of Eskimo scouts who attended the world jamboree just ended at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Among the tales, some quite tall, brought back here by the 44 local scouts who attended, was the one about the lads from the Arctic.

The heat hurt them.

So . . . the boys camped beside a refrigerator car used for storing perishable food. When the heat became unbearable, they'd pop inside and cool off.

The lads said that while it became hot up north on the delta, it wasn't sticky heat such as is experienced in the east.

Swapping accessories was one of the main pastimes of Victoria scouts when mingling with other boys from 67 countries at the jamboree.

The local scouts were bedecked with Mexican hats, Spanish bullwhips, Australian boomerangs and woggles (those are the neckerchief rings, often called turksheads) from every corner of the world.

A large number of beaming parents met the Vancouver boat Thursday and heard Scouter George Bennett attest that the boys were a credit to Victoria during the entire journey.

Before breaking off, pictures were taken on the Legislative Buildings lawn and the boys gave three cheers for their leaders, George Bennett, Frank Nelson, Dean Young and Rover Scout Glen Oliphant.

Housebreaking Plea Changed

Bail was set at $500 in Saanich police court today for Gordon Head soldier Hillary William Brown, charged with breaking and entering at the home of George Nelson, 5146 Lockside, on August 27.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall allowed Brown to change his plea from guilty to not guilty.

Brown was remanded to Thursday for trial.

Police evidence previously given in court was that Brown had been found asleep on a chesterfield in the Nelson home at about 11.45 p.m. August 27.

Brown said he had been drinking and didn't remember entering the house.

The Nelson family was away at the time.

Vancouver Speech By Bishop Hill

Most Rev. James M. Hill, Bishop of Victoria, will be among three prelates to address the fifth annual convention of the B.C. Catholic Education Association Sunday, Sept. 11, in the Georgia Hotel, Vancouver.

Other speakers will be most Rev. William Duke, archbishop of Vancouver and Most Rev. Martin Johnson, co-adjutor bishop of Vancouver.

More than 400 delegates are expected to attend from throughout the province.

The association was formed for the purpose of obtaining increased recognition of Catholic education in the province.

BCPC Calls Tenders On Timber at Buttle

B.C. Power Commission Thursday called for tenders on clearing of timber on the foreshores of Buttle and Upper Campbell Lake.

Tenders are returnable by Sept. 27. The projects will be carried out separately, and involve clearing of 6,279 acres on Upper Campbell, and 1,780 acres on Buttle.

The B.C. Power Commission set the amount of timber fronting Buttle Lake at 80,000,000 feet, and Upper Campbell at 30,000,000 feet. Conservationists have estimated the timber surrounding Buttle at as high as 200,000,000 feet.

The timber will be cut and boomed by the contractors, and then put up for bids by the B.C. Forest Service. Proceeds will be used to pay the cost of clearing.

A forest service official said it is "doubtful" whether much money will be left, since, he said, the commission will have to carry out "a bang-up job of clearing and grubbing."

The clearing is an integral part of the $19,000,000 Upper Campbell Lake project, which will see construction of a massive dam at the outlet of Upper Campbell.

This dam will cause flooding of Buttle Lake, 19 feet above normal high water.

Upper Campbell clearing must be completed by Sept. 1, 1956, and that at Buttle by May 1, 1957.

Swimmers Wear Cap Numbers

Spectators will be assisted in keeping track of their favorites in the Labor Day Elk-Beaver Lake distance swim by painted numbers on each contestant's bathing cap.

Officials announced today that the numbers will also be useful for guiding the swimmers. They have asked all contestants and other participants to be at the swim headquarters at 9.30 a.m. Each swimmer is asked to furnish a blanket for his or her own use.

The race, for youths 16 and under, will be for several trophies. It is the first attempt to hold a mass race over the two-mile course.

Mayor Claude Harrison will lead a boat flotilla from Beaver to Elk Lake starting point at 10 a.m. and the race starts an hour later.

Sussexvale, Fortune Get New Skippers

Change of command of two Esquimalt based RCN ships was announced by naval headquarters at Ottawa today.

The modernized Prestonian class frigate HMCS Sussexvale is now commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. John B. Young, 32, of Vancouver. He succeeds Cmdr. Richard H. Leir, 33, Penticton, who will go to Britain for a Royal Navy staff course.

Lt.-Cmdr. Young was previously captain of the mine sweeper HMCS Fortune. Command of Fortune has been taken over by Lt.-Cmdr. Peter R. Hinton, of Victoria.

Roland Lacouriciere, 910 Market, will be sentenced Saturday in city police court on an impaired driving charge.

He pleaded guilty to driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol August 27 on Johnson. Police said he struck a parked auto.

30-Year-Old Family Firms In Liquidation

Two Victoria manufacturing companies, Victoria Bed & Mattress Company Limited and Parker's Manufacturing Co., Ltd., have entered into voluntary liquidation after more than 30 years in business here.

The two firms were owned by the Parker family and jointly managed. Until recently they employed in the neighborhood of 100 persons, turning out mattresses, comforters, cushions, chesterfield suites and women's apparel. Some of their output was marketed across Canada.

The two companies were located on Topaz Avenue until early this year when they moved to a new location at 1202 Wharf Street.

J. Percy Frampton has been named as liquidator.

DISCUSSED, METHODICALLY TABLED

Major Civic Projects Still Await Action

By PETE LOUDON
Times City Hall Reporter

Four months away from municipal elections, Victoria city council still faces the big issues which many observers hoped would be solved in 1955.

In spite of continued attempts by a council minority, the tide of civic affairs for 1955 has reached the ebb with many major projects still awaiting action.

An ambitious program of maintenance is on the books, but new developments have been scarce in Victoria.

Biggest single undertaking of elected representatives has been passing of the budget in the face of complicated government controls — the new school formula and equalization of assessments.

Aside from the routine, council permitted a $20,000 repair job to be tackled in reinforcing the arena floor. A new juvenile court was established and arrangements were started with the provincial government which will ensure a Victoria West heliport site for use in years to come. Also a saving was effected in hiring of Commissionaires for meter patrols.

But several big issues, the meat of controversy, many of them old familiar chestnuts by now, have been discussed at length and methodically tabled.

They include:

A new Point Ellice bridge.

A civic auditorium.

A new city hall, police station, fire hall.

Reclamation of the Gorge waterway.

Fluoridation of water.

Amalgamation of Greater Victoria.

A Victoria horse-race track.

Planning is more advanced and reports expected soon on removal or replanning of the Hillside-Douglas roundabout and participation in the building of a new wing at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Council has four months to formulate some definite action before the embarrassing questions start popping at election meetings.

The Point Ellice Bridge need is the most urgent in the eyes of most observers.

A city fund for that purpose, augmented by proceeds from land sales, now stands at almost $250,000. Most of this is invested in United Kingdom bonds at good interest rates.

It has been resolved—and tabled—that a 4-mill increase meant specifically for the bridge, be put to the voters this year in a referendum. Even that action would serve to reassure voters.

But it will take more enthusiasm than was shown Thursday this week when city council finance committee slated its twice-monthly meeting.

Except for the chairman—nobody showed up. In fairness—it hasn't happened before.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Who was the American general who allegedly attributed his success in battle to his ability to be at a given position "fustest with the mostest?" G. A. C.

A.—Lieut.-Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest (1821-1877), a Confederate cavalry leader in the U.S. Civil War. He started life in the greatest poverty and was the principal support of a widowed mother and younger children. He made a fortune, even owning slaves. Wholly without military education and with limited education of any sort, he rose from private. History records an extensive list of his successful actions in the field. "Perhaps," says the Century Cyclopedia of Names, "Forrest's widest fame now rests upon his unique recipe for victory, which was to 'get there first with the most men,' usually misquoted as 'fustest with the mostest'."

Q.—After whom or what was Bute Inlet named? G. W. L.

Creates Soldiers for Collectors' Parades

UNIQUE—That's the word for the soldier miniatures created by Mme. Francoise Metayer, of Paris, France. From composition of the metal in which they are cast, to last touches of the hand-painted uniforms, they are her creations.

EXQUISITE DETAIL—Dwarf tree gives scale-of-reference of this group of Louis XV's Swiss Guards in bivouac, created by Mme. Francoise Metayer. Painstaking research precedes painting of the Lilliputian figures in period costumes.

PARIS (NEA)—Toy soldiers are seldom found in nurseries these days.

Instead, they interest very serious grownups whose hobby is collecting these little figures representing the armies of the world. Some collections are worth thousands of dollars.

The collectors' toy soldiers have little in common with those of old. They are works of art, miracles of precision and fine coloring and are astonishingly lifelike.

The only woman in the world who specializes in the creation of toy soldiers is a Parisienne, Mme. Francoise Metayer. When, 20 years ago, she lost both her husband and her father within the space of a few months, she was faced with the necessity of earning a living.

"Brought up in the traditions of the French bourgeoisie, I had not been trained to do anything but play the piano, embroider and paint miniatures," she explained.

An antique dealer friend suggested she go and see a well-known French author, Leopold Marchand.

Mme. Metayer thought in terms of miniatures. Instead, Marchand was an ardent collector of toy soldiers.

Showing her a battered specimen, he said: "Do you think you could repair and repaint the figurine?" She said she would try. Since then she has done nothing else.

Mme. Metayer was an immediate success at her new job. Today she has clients scattered all over the world, in addition to filling orders for the national museums and exhibitions. Connoisseurs immediately recognize her work.

Because the lead soldiers then available were pretty roughly made she soon decided she would make her own. She also decided that she would give them lifelike attitudes to eliminate the old stiff, unnatural appearance.

High up under the mansard roof of her modest apartment, the walls of Mme. Metayer's tiny salon are covered with hundreds of colorful figurines. She has specialized in the armies of Louis XIV, the Revolution and Napoleon's First Empire. But she has also created entire armies belonging to different countries and different epochs.

Not long ago an American collector ordered 26 Civil War figurines, including one which represented Lincoln making his famous Gettysburg speech. This entailed a considerable amount of research work as France is not very rich in historical documents covering American history.

How long does it take to turn out a soldier?

"That is impossible to say," Mme. Metayer said. "It all depends on my mood and the subject. Then, again, some uniforms are much more complicated than others. Anyway, the details, although infinitesimal, have to be exact down to the last button and the length of the basques."

All the figurines are a standard size—55 millimeters (just over 2 inches) from soles to eyes, as headgear varies in height.

On a table was displayed a miniature army ordered by a provincial museum. It cost one million francs. There were also two dioramas ordered for a forthcoming exhibition in Marseilles commemorating France's African armies since their creation in 1830.

Collectors of toy soldiers, unlike those who collect other forms of art, are not on the lookout for old or rare pieces. They seldom exist. The collectors object is to reconstitute as closely as possible the great historical armies of the past.

Children's Diseases Belong to Childhood

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Children's diseases are usually less severe and have fewer harmful effects in childhood than they do later on. The psychological effects of such diseases must be considered, too.

(Q)—"We have an only child, five years of age. My husband insists that we must send him to kindergarten this fall, as there are no children his age near us to play with him. I try to take him to play with my friends' children as often as possible, but I agree that the child needs more companionship with other children than this. The one thing that holds me back is his health. He is not robust, and I am so worried that at school he will pick up germs from other children and have measles, mumps, chicken pox, and all the other diseases children get when they are in groups. I feel that if I can keep him away from germs for another year, he may be stronger and better able to stand such diseases. Am I being selfish tbout this?"

Hurlock

(A)—No mother who has her child's welfare at heart is really selfish. However, I think your sense of values is somewhat distorted. The physical damage of children's diseases is likely to be far less than the psychological damage lack of companionship can cause.

A young child is generally not nearly so sick when he has a child's disease, such as mumps or chicken pox, as an older child, an adolescent or an adult. Furthermore, the new medicines do a lot to lessen the severity of these diseases, and some can be prevented. Discuss this with your doctor.

A child who is so guarded that he escapes the diseases of childhood when his contemporaries have them and then contracts them later is likely to be much embarrassed. A high school student, for example, is much more embarrassed when he comes down with mumps than a child is, because he knows or suspects that his classmates feel he has a "kid's disease."

It is always a great satisfaction to a child to be just like his friends. If they have mumps, for example, he wants to have them too, just as he wants to have a bicycle if they have bicycles. Let your child go to kindergarten and be like the other children, even to the point of having the same diseases they have.

Now It's the Turnip That Inspires Queen Contest and Festival Frolic

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—"Rutabaga day" to be held here this fall is calculated to give the lowly turnip a promotional shot in the arm.

Turnip growers, shippers, and buyers will gather Sept. 26 for fun and frolic and to pick a queen—all centred around the rutabaga—which is just a high-class name for the turnip.

But in western Ontario—the largest turnip-producing area in Canada—turnips are no laughing matter. They grow the biggest, best and most, to the tune of 2,000,000 bushels marketed last year.

Most of the crop went to the United States which has developed a large-size taste for turnips lately. But Canada still lags sadly behind and rutabaga day is designed to lift the product from something small boys detest and are forced to eat—to a national vegetable delicacy.

Rutabaga day will see princesses as well as a queen. There will be speeches by Canadian agricultural leaders and housewives will receive recipes and new ideas for cooking and serving the vegetable in more imaginative ways.

A "gold tournament" will be the day's highlight when buyers line up on one side of the course and producers and shippers on the other. Coached by the "turnip princesses" producers and shippers will push turnips with hoes right into the hands of the buyers.

The princess coaching the first producer to get his turnip over the line will automatically become "queen of rutabaga day."

The imaginative producers of the turnip festival have even organized the turnip production area into "rutabaga city."

APPETIZING RECIPES

For housewives Mr. Wilford recommended two appetizing turnip recipes—"Just to show the vegetable's true merits."

Scalloped turnips and apples:

2 Cups of cooked turnips sliced small; 1½ cups of sour raw apples sliced; ½ cup brown sugar; 4 tablespoons of butter; 1 teaspoon of salt. Place half the turnips in greased casserole of two-quart size, cover with half the apples, sprinkle with half the sugar, dot with half the butter and sprinkle with half the salt. Then repeat the performance with the other half. Add 2 tablespoons of water, bake covered in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 minutes. Remove cover to brown if desired. Serves five to six.

Turnips, mushrooms and fresh green peas combination:

1½ cups turnips diced; 2 cups fresh or frozen green peas; ½ cup sauteed mushrooms (browned in butter in pan). Cook all the vegetables and combine together with butter, season and serve at once. Serve six portions.

Interest Waning

BONN (CP)—Only 22.2 per cent of hairdressers' and barbers' apprentices in the West German federal republic are boys, a convention of the trade was told here. The waning of male interest in the field will make it necessary to train young women as barbers.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Large Hips Hereditary, But You Can Trim Them

Q.—"Large hips run in my family. Even when the women in my family are the correct weight they still have a bulging lower hipline. I am just 18 and seem to have the same trouble, even at my age. Can I do anything about this?"

A.—It is true that weight distribution and bone structure are inherited. In the case of weight distribution this is due to certain inherited glandular setups.

You can do something about it! You can take hip reducing exercises which will better distribute your poundage. You probably will always have this tendency but if you fight it you can bring your measurements into better proportion.

I know one family in which all of the feminine members have straight up and down ankles. The situation can be improved slightly but not much.

Q.—"Is it true that it is natural for women to get fatter as they get older?"

A.—It is natural in that most women do get fatter as the years progress, but it is not necessary. Most women are less active physically as they grow older, and also the glandular system slows down. Then, too, older people need much less food than younger ones, but far too often the older person does not cut the food intake as he or she should but keeps on eating in the same way, and the same amount.

In fact, in many cases they eat more rich food because they have more leisure, indulge in more social life and do not have to watch the food budget so carefully.

Q.—"How do I get rid of my suntan? I liked it in summertime but now I just look as though I have jaundice."

A.—Bleaching creams may help some but you just will have to give the tan time to fade.

Island, Mainland Families United in Recent Ceremony

Wednesday in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, Miss Gladys Irene Shiels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Shiels, Sointula, B.C., exchanged vows with John Henderson Mitchell, Youbou, B.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mitchell, 1513 Hampshire Road.

Archdeacon A. E. deL. Nunns performed the ceremony. Red and white gladioli were on the altar and marking guest pews.

"The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Walter Cownden during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white lace, fashioned with strapless bodice topped with a matching bolero. Ruchings of white net were featured on the bodice, and the full, bouffant skirt was composed of tiers of white net over silk taffeta, in floor-length. Her fingertip veil of illusion net bordered with lace was caught to a cap of lace trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls, the groom's gift, and carried a cascade bridal bouquet of white gladioli and red roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Helen Hodgson, was gowned in pink net over taffeta. Bridesmaid, Miss Terry Peurojoki, wore a blue gown of net and lace over taffeta.

Junior bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Shiels, sister of the bride, chose a pink net over taffeta dress with Bertha collar trimmed with rhinestones. All carried colonial bouquets of cream gladioli with ribbons en tone.

Best man was John Berikoff, Youbou, B.C., and ushers were W. G. Mitchell, Calgary, Alta., and L. A. Wright.

The Olde England Inn was decorated with gladioli for the reception which followed. A three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink roses and silver leaves centred the bride's table. Pink candles and sweet peas were on the table. J. T. Walter proposed the toast.

For a honeymoon to be spent in the Okanagan Valley, the bride chose for traveling, a pink knitted suit with pale blue shortie coat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will make their home in Youbou, B.C.

Teen-Ager Travels World, Spreads Gospel in Own Way

DETROIT (NEA)—A fluffy, peppy teenager is a living tonic for those prone to view our young people with alarm.

Travelling about the world teaching that Christianity is fun, she creates a different impression than the hot-rod, rhythm-and-blues one which is currently so popular.

Watching 25-year-old Renee Martz jotting down her thoughts, nobody would imagine that she is a veteran evangelist known to churchgoers of 37 nations, master of 15 languages.

She seemed like any other teen-age girl in a musing mood, sitting on her bed, clad in a sweater and flowered, bouffant skirt, her feet bare, her books and letters strewn around her, a pen held pensively in hand.

But Renee is a dynamic preacher. She started preaching her message when she was six years old, feels that her teen-body the answer to modern disturbance of the restless teen-age world.

"I can give the answers to juvenile delinquents," she said. "I understand them. They are looking for thrills and fun. I show them that it is fun to be a Christian."

Renee, who sings her own songs in bebop style as well as delivering an animated, fervent sermon, was here for special services at Liberty Temple.

Renee said she knew she wanted to preach almost a year before her father, Jack Mertz, a Baptist minister, gave her permission to do so.

"I had a vision," said Renee. "There appeared a great red cross in the clear summer sky, and a wonderful voice told me, 'I want you to preach the gospel.'

"It wasn't a frightening experience—just splendid, enthralling and inspiring. I was never so happy as the evening when dad finally let me preach my first sermon."

Said Martz, "That was the night my daughter ran me out of my job."

It is not hard to see that Renee really means that it is "fun to be a Christian."

McFarlane-Young Vows Repeated in St. Paul's

St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church was decorated with baskets of gladioli at the entrance and at the altar for a recent wedding in which Miss Nora Jean Young, exchanged vows with Robert Gordon McFarlane. Rev. J. A. Roberts officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. W. A. Sinclair, 1102 Cedar Avenue, Trail, B.C., and the late Mr. Robert C. Young, was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Sinclair. A gown of white nylon net and lace over net and satin underskirts was worn by the bride. The billowing skirt was floor-length, and a fitted bodice was fashioned with long sleeves. Her full-length veil of matching lace and net was caught to a tiny crown. A bridal bouquet of red roses in crescent shape completed her ensemble.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Colquhoun, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, Miss Trellis Frame, cousin of the bride, were both gowned in floor-length dresses of blue net over taffeta. Their crescent bouquets were of pink and blue carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McFarlane, Carman, Man., had Lorne Leish as best man, and James Balfour and Donald Bouton as ushers.

Club Tango was decorated with baskets of summer flowers for a reception, where a three-tier wedding cake centred the refreshment table. Rev. Roberts proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Vancouver and Seattle, the new Mrs. McFarlane donned a mauve two-piece dress with natural-toned duster coat and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The newlyweds will make their home in the Westchester Apartments, 1407 Fort Street.

Auxiliary Tea

Free Training for Children Of War Dead Still Available

A group of 1954 high school graduates, whose fathers died on active service or as a result of wounds, have only a few weeks left to apply for free university education or other advance training, the Canadian Legion has announced.

Educational assistance is granted to the group under the Children of the War Dead Education Assistance Act of 1953. Federal assistance is paid only if the student enrolled in an institution within 15 months of graduating from high school.

The plan provides tuition, other fees and $25 a month allowance while a student attends college, normal school or a nursing training school.

Where Are the Young Men?

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

WE ARE A GROUP OF young working girls. We are wondering where all the young men are in this old world. If you print this letter in your column maybe someone will start a project or club where young men and women can get together for good times.

Since we all work in small offices we never come in contact with outside people. The only place you can meet young men these days is in some liquor joint and we are not the type and do not care for people who frequent those places. In the few years since we have been out of school most of our friends have either married, in the service or have moved away.

"The Spinsters."

DEAR "SPINSTERS":

YOU ARE MISTAKEN IF you think the only place you can meet young men is in liquor joints. Many churches have young adult groups where young people can meet and be together. I know of several such groups where the young adults have square dances, debates, church suppers and parties besides their regular religious meetings.

I think your group needs to use a little imagination and learn to develop new interests, depending on your individual abilities. For instance, why not join the Theatre Guild? If you do not aspire to be another Helen Hayes there are many other things you can do, from taking tickets to help with make-up, costumes or building scenery.

A course or two at an evening school would not only be constructive but should be a way to come in contact with others your age. The important thing is to get out to meet people. Join groups where you can establish interesting friendships. It can be done if you will exert a little effort but you can't expect these friendships to "just happen." Good luck, girls!

* * *

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

I HAVE WHAT I THINK is a serious problem. I like a boy very much and he likes me. We cannot let his friends know it, though, because they won't approve. He belongs to a high-class gang of boys and girls who say they will drop him if he dates me.

I told him not to give them up for me but to see me away from school without them knowing about it. They don't like me because I don't like them. I think they are stuck-up and snobbish. Please tell me what to do; I will appreciate it very much.

WANDA.

DEAR WANDA:

I FEEL DOUBTFUL THAT your real reasons for disliking this whole group are just because they are, as you say, stuck-up and snobbish. In your letter you disclosed the fact that you do not think you are as socially acceptable as this group of high-class boys and girls who are friends of the boy you like.

Whether the underlying reasons responsible for this problem have to do with moral behavior, family social position or money I have no way of knowing, but there is something radically wrong, in my opinion.

You see, Wanda, before we can expect others to think well of us we must first think well of ourselves. Your suggestion that the boy hide his relationship with you is an admission that you feel inferior to these other boys and girls. Otherwise you would feel resentful and would not entertain the thought of "hiding" at all. My advice is not to consider dating this boy on a stay-out-of-sight basis. Either hold your head high and insist on a normal, open relationship or drop him and date boys who are willing to overlook whatever it is you feel you lack.

Harness Record

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—The sensational three-year-old trotter Scott Frost sped in front all the way Thursday night to capture the $73,840 Yonkers Futurity trot at Yonkers raceway and boosted his 1955 earnings to a one-year record for harness horses.

The winner's share of the purse, $36,550.80, brought his earnings this year to $119,651.80.

2,200 CHECKS MADE FOR REASSESSMENT

A progress report on the complete reassessment of Oak Bay was submitted to the municipal council Thursday night and stated that 2,200 buildings have already been visited.

Griffith Jones, municipal assessor, told council in a letter that he had recorded all pertinent information but has not yet reached the point of calculating new values.

Youth Guilty Of Giving False Identity

A second charge, that of driving without a licence, was read in city police court Thursday against Donald Hunt, 18.

Hunt will appear Friday for sentence on that charge and one of misleading a police constable. He has pleaded guilty to both.

Hunt was involved in a traffic accident July 16 at Princess and Blanshard.

He gave police the name and the driver's licence of David Ireland, Quesnel.

He was charged and convicted of careless driving under the name of Ireland and the licence was suspended.

The false identity came to police attention when the real Frank Ireland asked the motor vehices branch for a duplicate licence as he had lost his original.

After arriving in Victoria from Vancouver, Hunt bought a car in the name of Ireland and registered the purchase with the motor vehicles branch under that name.

Asked today why he had tried to establish a false identity, Hunt told Magistrate Henry C. Hall that he "did it to get a job as a truck driver."

"I have no home. There was no one to sign for my licence," he said.

Blind Ask Training For Work on Farm

A resolution requesting an investigation into a plan for training blind people as farmers, was endorsed by the Canadian Council of the Blind which wound up its four-day 11th annual convention here Thursday.

E. L. Ross, an executive officer, told the meeting that there are several blind farmers in the United States, and at least one in Canada, who have made a success of farming.

The council re-elected by acclamation for the 12th consecutive year, Sadie Brooks Bending, London, Ont., as president.

All other officers were re-elected. They are Ivan L. Hunter, Gooderham, Ont., first vice-president; H. A. Lacey, Edmonton, second vice-president; W. Workman, M.D., New Westminster; W. H. Phillips, Calgary; E. L. Ross, Saskatoon; Hugh MacDonald, Sidney, Nova Scotia, board of directors.

Last night, Education Minister Ray Williston speaking at the convention's annual banquet, said the goal of his department is to make the provincial Jericho Hill school for the blind and deaf in Vancouver, one of the finest of its kind in Canada.

He said a new addition will be built to the school next year, and new facilities will include a swimming pool and many other recreational improvements.

FOR NOVEMBER 18, 19

'Trial by Jury' Choice of G. & S.

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

Gilbert and Sullivan's vest-pocket operetta "Trial by Jury" will be presented by the Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Association Nov. 18 and 19 at Oak Bay junior high school auditorium.

Balance of the program will be devoted to excerpts from the various works of the two collaborators.

Auditions for new members were held Thursday night and some promising new talent was uncovered by the association's auditioning committee consisting of Jim Yeomans, John Bray and Catherine Dennison.

The committee, however, had it own refrain—and a mighty familiar one! "Where, oh where have the bonnie laddies gone?"

Which doesn't mean there were no males present or that the male membership had dwindled greatly. But what organization of its kind cannot do with as many of the stalwart sex as it can lay its hands on?

So, brother, if you can hit the middle of a note and stay there, if you can breathe while hanging onto a mouthful of crazy words; if you can stand on your two feet and not turn into a lump of soggy dough under the glare of the x-ray border, it's practically your duty as a citizen to get in there hand help!

First rehearsal for "Trial by Jury" will be held at the Duck Block, Thursday, and auditions for principals, evenings of Sept. 12 and 13.

Mrs. Mildred Allen will be stage director for the operetta and Melvin Knudsen musical director. Mrs. Allen is in close touch with the D'Oyly Carte Company and is garnering as much authentic and traditional information on production details as possible.

This will be the first occasion on which the Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Association has staged a production without sponsorship, all former operas since its inception having been sponsored by the Victoria Gyro Club.

Toronto 'To See' Fight

TORONTO (CP)—The Star says that, for the first time in Canada, a Toronto theatre will carry a closed-circuit commercial telecast of the heavyweight boxing championship fight between Rocky Marciano and Archie Moore Sept. 20.

The theatre accommodates 2,600. Seats for the telecast will be $5.

Sea Lion Hunters Reported Safe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Martin Benson, 43, and Walter Kryger, 20, who left here in early August in an 18-foot speedboat to hunt sea lions off the northern tip of Vancouver Island, were reported safe Thursday.

Word was received here from Minstrel Island that the two were safe and would be home Saturday. They had not been heard from for 10 days.

TIMBERLANDS

OF VANCOUVER ISLAND AND COASTAL BRITISH COLUMBIA ARE

DANGEROUSLY DRY

British Columbia Loggers' Association has requested the Provincial Game Commission to postpone the opening of the hunting season, scheduled for Saturday, September 3, unless there is a change from the present hazardous conditions.

Not only are the small pieces of wood in the logging slash dryer than the kindling you use to start a fire in your stove or the match you light it with, but now even the moisture under the shelter of the green timbers has evaporated.

ALL OF McMILLAN AND BLOEDEL'S LOGGING OPERATIONS HAVE CLOSED VOLUNTARILY

When the woods are too dry for the experienced loggers, who have been trained for years in fire prevention and fire fighting, it is time for everyone to become greatly concerned that no fire should destroy the forests.

ED MURROW VISITS THE DICK POWELLS AT 7.30 ON C-11

Tonight, commentator Edward R. Murrow returns with his Person to Person show on Channel 11 at 7.30. With his TV cameras and crews he will visit the home of actor Dick Powell and his lovely wife June Allyson. During the second half of the program he will "drop in" on famed photographer and traveller Margaret Bourke-White. In such a manner Person to Person has visited 170 homes since 1953 when the program was first instituted.

"It's a rare citizen these days who slams the door in Murrow's face," writes AP's Charles Mercer. "But in the beginning there were several turn-downs. Nearly all those who first said "no" have since come around with an eager "yes."

"One of the big problems," says Murrow," is delay in scheduling. You'd be surprised how many ladies want to have their homes redecorated before letting our cameras come in."

In the past two seasons Murrow has visited generals, actors, athletes, business leaders, politicians, artists, a New York redcap and former president Truman. "By and large, professional actors are the most nervous," says Murrow. "Athletes are the most relaxed."

"Tallulah Bankhead told him: 'Dahling, I d—— near died. There I was all by myself, and all my life I've had an author.'

"On the other hand, Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees told him: Why should I be worried? There ain't nobody gonna be throwin' at my head."

The commentator cannot speak too highly of the show's technical staff who move the mass of equipment into homes. For a period of eight to 10 hours a group of 13 to 15 men are working about a home, disrupting its usual routines. "But we have yet to receive one complaint," says Murrow. "I think the technical people are the most underrated in the whole business."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Clean up house, attend laundry, fix utilities, repair gadgets, etc. Then p.m. is splendid for going out on the town and enjoying yourself. Seek those places of recreation which are your cherished outlets. Be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Errands, shopping, getting in supplies, completing correspondence, discussing mutual aims with relatives, neighbors, business companions all fine. Then tonight you can enjoy your home. Make changes that you've delayed there.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Repair property, possessions so that you can have greater feeling of security. Tend to budget, bills, due and receivable, during a.m. Later you can get off on jaunt with close comrade and enjoy joint recreation you both (or all) like.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Now this a.m. is your time to do all those personal chores that are difficult during week or that you've just put off doing. P.M. then is good for getting together with long-time satisfactory, down-to-earth companions.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SATURDAY . . .

Saturday's child is one of those very interesting youngsters who will be most conscientious in early years and who will need much spiritual advice or training in order to understand life or to have a feeling of security. If this is bestowed by those in charge during early years, then you will find that your offspring has the fortitude and strength of character to pioneer in all sorts of interesting outlets as time marches on. So prepare your tot early for a most active, intelligent career in later life.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 4, 1955

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Think out what you youself want early. Listen to understand suggestions given by those more experienced than you. P.M. unusually fine for getting together at place of entertainment with new or influential personalities.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Quiet thoughtfulness early brings solutions to your perplexities. Then afternoon is unusually good for arriving at better understanding with any members of your family who are within range. Show them your devotion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Hasty but brilliant friend has all kinds of recommendations for increasing your success in your mental interests. It's necessary you do get together with him, or her, even though it means travelling some distance. Enjoy neighbors, too.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Now you have chance to show your concern for the general public in any interest of civic or patriotic nature that is your own special forte. Be sure to act as those of influence most understand, respect.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Travelling, new ideas or persons from a distance can all be more than usually helpful to you. Early gain spiritual, educational, scientific knowledge from sources of your choice. Then, expand, extend your horizons as far as possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Being with those toward whom you have deep attachment reveals new concord that can be present for you both. Seek ways to justify your own faith by being quiet, then going to close companion and co-operating gently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)—Now you can be constantly with that partner who intrigues you the most even though he goads you into quicker than your natural actions or pace. It's good for you. P.M., entertain, enjoy amusements with group of good pals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Try to get off for a while with co-workers toward whom you require more understanding if your work is to be satisfactory in the future. Think in terms of career, reputation and bring to mutual new high. Then you zoom upward.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—This is your day to put upon yourself the radiance of your own jovial Sagittarian nature. Let others see you like, appreciate their best points. Stop trying to make others better for one day and just enjoy them. Be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Now you can spend as much time as convenient in your own home or with other members of your own family in theirs. Show you appreciate benefits of your own clan's background and fine principles. Plan future thusly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Now you can really enjoy this day, for you are able to take trips, jaunts to see many of your companions if you take time to do so. Talk out plans for the future effortlessly and you gain new support in your own ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Your inherited background, the principles under which you were raised, the advice of those of down-to-earth experience all give you excellent suggestions for the coming months. Listen to understand worthy principles.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SUNDAY . . .

Sunday's child is one of those very headstrong youngsters who will have lots of unusually interesting ideas and who will have the vitality and force of character to start to put them into effect. YOUR job is to see that they are carried through. It's better for your child never to start his, or her, brilliant plans than to fail in completing them. So, make sure your offspring continues until the end, tiresome though it may have become. Then real character is learned and the later life can be a great success.

Return of Pillory Advocated by Lawyer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian lawyers Thursday heard a suggestion that the pillory, exposing prisoners to public ridicule, be reintroduced in this country to persuade criminals to mend their ways.

The proposal was made by Louis Hyndman of Edmonton to the criminal justice section of the Canadian Bar Association during discussion of a resolution urging abolition of corporal punishment as part of a prison sentence.

Mr. Hyndman and a number of other lawyers opposed the resolution on grounds that corporal punishment is a deterrent to crime. He said he even would go so far as to advocate the return of the pillory.

"I think it would have an excellent effect on criminals," he said.

A pillory is a wooden framework with holes into which an offender's arms, head and sometimes feet can be inserted and locked.

MURDERER RECORDS LAST WORDS

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—A murderer executed Wednesday in the Arizona state prison gas chamber spoke by tape recording at his funeral Thursday and told his mourners he hoped to see them in Heaven.

Lester Edward Bartholomew, who shot his wife and two of his children at their Phoenix home last May 28, asked "all of you who are my friends, and those near to me" to "get right with God."

Bartholomew recorded the funeral message in death row.

Trigger Burke Murdered Six, Police Claim

'Hired Killer' Mocks Questioners

NEW YORK (UP)—Notorious Elmer (Trigger) Burke faces arraignment in a well-guarded courtroom today for the barroom slaying of a buddy who tried to break up a fight.

Burke, brought to New York Thursday from Charleston, S.C., was accused of killing Edward (Poochy) Walsh in 1952. New York police also have been questioning Burke about five other New York murders, a Boston shooting and three record holdups.

Detectives who accompanied Burke on the train ride from Charleston said the 130-pound acused machine-gun killer told them during the trip, "I ain't telling you guys nuttin'."

At 12.03 a.m., they said, he whispered that he would tell them one thing. He leaned close and said, "You know what. I have just become 38 years old. Let's have a drink."

The detectives said they gave him a glass of water.

Police charge that the former army Ranger was a hired killer for the east coast underworld. He was being held in Boston's Charles street jail for the machine-gun killing of a robbery suspect when he escaped a year ago.

Police believe Burke may have leading information on the more than $1,000,000 Brink's robbery in Boston in 1950, the $650,000 armored car holdup in Danvers, Mass., and the $305,000 cash robbery of a Long Island bank.

Burke faces a possible death sentence for the murder of Walsh. Police said Burke was fighting a man in a barroom in 1952 and was beating the man on the floor when Walsh intervened. Burke pulled out a gun, shot his friend to death and fled, police said.

HOCKEY CLUB

when pro hockey made its debut here. He was associated with that club, later renamed the Cougars, until 1926 when the entire Western Canada Hockey League was sold to the NHL.

He owned the arena in which the Victoria team, managed by Stan Patrick, played following the disbandment of the Western League, until fire destroyed the building in 1929.

He joined the New York Ranger organization in 1926 and was associated with that club as coach, general manager until 1947, and later vice-president of Madison Square Garden until 1949.

He came out of partial retirement to enter the present-day Cougars in the Western Hockey League in 1949; and he has held controlling and majority interest in the club since that time.

ISSUES STATEMENT

In announcing his retirement and sale of the club, Mr. Patrick said:

"After more than 55 years of association with hockey, I feel it is time for younger men to take over and I am pleased that so representative a group of Victorians has seen fit to join with my two sons, Murray and Lynn, in the ownership of the Cougars.

"Our six years of operation since opening of the new arena here has been most happy. The support of the fans has been tremendous and it is my earnest hope that it will continue.

"While I bow out of active association with the game, which I still consider the finest anywhere, I shall continue to be a fan and will be pleased to assist in the promotion of hockey in any way I can."

Dr. Wride, the club president, stated:

"I feel that the whole thing will create more local interest because of local ownership. I am glad to see control stay in Victoria. The prospects look very good this year, particularly because of our new working agreement with the Boston Bruins."

SCHOOL DRIVE

Government To Round-Up Doukhobors

B.C. department of education is prepared to step up its "back-to-school" policy for the children of school-hating Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

The department is putting the finishing touches to a prefabricated dormitory unit at New Denver, which will enable officials to accommodate an additional 48 school-age Freedomites.

Some 75 children taken away from their parents in the Kootenays by court orders are now living and learning at the former TB sanitorium at New Denver.

HELD ALL SUMMER

They were picked up in a mass collection drive at Krestova and other Sons of Freedom strongholds in the fall of 1954, and have been detained all summer.

Last terms, another 29 Freedomite youngsters showed up at public schools voluntarily, and department officials are hopefull that even more will be on hand when schools open Sept. 6.

Government inspectors have estimated that some 75 Freedomite school-aged children are still ducking the school order. If they do not attend schools voluntarily, they will be picked up, and their parents taken to court.

The government was unable to accommodate further enrollment at New Denver last year.

College Education Boosts Income $91,000, Say Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — How much is a college education worth in cold cash?

On the average, $91,000, two census bureau officials reported today to the annual meeting of the American Sociological Society.

Paul C. Glick and Herman P. Miller said: "Over a lifetime, the average college graduate can expect to receive about $100,000 more income than the average high school graduate. Since the direct and indirect costs of the college education are roughly estimated at $9,000, it is concluded that a college education represents a sound investment from a purely monetary viewpoint."

The census men cautioned, however, that about one-fourth of all college graduates earn less than high school graduates in the same age group.

Court of Appeal To Be Split Into Three Divisions

The B.C. Court of Appeal will be split into two divisions, one sitting in Victoria and the other in Vancouver simultaneously, it was announced Thursday by Chief Justice Gordon Sloan.

The court's fall session will open in Victoria on Sept. 13.

The new plan is to ease the court's heavy burden of cases which have been steadily increasing for several years past. It will also cut down expenditures and speed justice.

Chief Justice Sloan said the recent increase in the number of appeal judges from five to seven made the move possible. Three justices will sit in Vancouver and three in Victoria, with one justice acting as a replacement.

The system will not interfere with the official sittings of the court in Victoria and Vancouver. These are held three times a year in each city.

The divisional court will mainly hear personal criminal appeals or any emergency cases. The official court will still handle the bulk of the appeals.

IN LAND PURCHASES

Lord Asks Safeguards For Orthodox Douks

Orthodox Doukhobors in the Kootenays will be aided by RCMP in the formation of patrols to guard against threatened Sons of Freedom violence.

The unprecedented move follows an interim report by Judge Arthur E. Lord, who is conducting a one-man Royal Commission into the snarled problem of allocating Doukhobor lands in the interior.

Judge Lord recommended that "the facilities of the RCMP be made available for organizing the Doukhobors for their own protection.

"They could be instructed in forming their own patrols and guards, and if thought advisable, some of their number might be given the status of special police constables," the commissioner said.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the government accepts the recommendation "in principle," and will give effect to it.

A further recommendation by Judge Lord, that the government investigate the possibility of obtaining insurance on orthodox Doukhobors' homes, through provincial guarantees, also was accepted "in principle."

Mr. Bonner said the government will give effect to the recommendation "at the proper time," after seeking the co-operation of commercial insurers.

The lands inquiry was set up by the government late in 1953. Judge Lord was asked to find the best method of returning lands seized from the Doukhobors by insurance firms during the pre-war depression.

The commissioner's interim report said that "while threats and warnings hang over them (the Orthodox Doukhobors) they will not apply to purchase any part of the lands."

Canadian Truce Chief Caught In Middle of Endless Battle

CAIRO (AP)—As Egyptians and Israelis traded blows across their demarcation line this week, the fading hopes of peace in Palestine rested heavily on a Canadian—Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, the United Nations' chief referee in the Palestine quarrel.

The Ottawa general, chief of staff of the UN truce supervision organization, is caught in the middle of a seemingly endless fight over Palestine between Arabs and Jews. It is his thankless job to try to persuade both sides not to retaliate even when attacked, and to cease firing if the other side is still shooting.

The 58-year-old Burns went to Palestine a year ago to take over the job of watching four different armistice agreements. Israel has a separate truce with each of the Arab states on its frontiers—Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt.

On each of these fronts, joint Israeli-Arab mixed armistice commissions operate under a UN chairman to investigate frontier violations.

Burns has managed to reduce tension noticable on three of the fronts, but the Israeli-Egyptian line around the Egyptian-held Gaza coastal strip has turned into a major headache.

BITTER DISAPPOINTMENT

Persons close to the truce chief say he suffered a bitter personal disappointment last week when months of painstaking work to ease tension in the Gaza area collapsed.

He had persuaded Egypt and Israel to open negotiations aimed at eliminating frontier incidents. But just before the general arrived in Cairo for further talks last week, an alleged Israeli attack left three Egyptians dead and eight wounded near Gaza.

When Burns reached Cairo, Prime Minister Gamal Abdel Nasser told him Egypt was withdrawing from the talks.

There has not been a quiet day on the Gaza frontier since.

Despite the breakdown in the talks, Burns has continued to move back and forth across the lines in an effort to get the bitter adversaries to call off the shooting.

MAJ.-GEN. E. L. M. BURNS

The square-jawed Canadian is given at best a 50-50 chance to restore peace but neutral observers agree he has done almost the impossible in winning the respect of both sides. His stubborn, sincere neutrality is listed as a major attribute in this accomplishment.

"I came out here with an open mind and I believe I still have one," Burns said recently. "When I talk to one side, I am always thinking how reasonable the other side is, and vice versa."

Burns' neutrality is even reflected in his choice of living quarters. One of his predecessors lived on the Arab side of the line, the other on the Israeli side. Each was accused of partiality because of this.

Burns has chosen to live in the austere neutrality of UN headquarters in a segment of No Man's Land dividing Arab from Israeli Jerusalem. It's not his fault that the hill on which he lives was known to ancients as the "hill of evil counsel."

Burns' reputation as a "soldier's soldier" also has done much to help him maintain his respected role. His staff—officers from many countries—share a healthy respect for the general, based partly on his military record as commander of the 1st Canadian Corps in Europe in 1944.

This respect for his military ability also is shared by the army officers with whom he deals from both Israel and Egypt.

"When the general confers with an Egyptian or an Israeli officer on a truce problem," said a member of his staff, "they act like two division commanders working side by side."

Woman Fined $25 For Store Theft

Housekeeper Kate M. Clifford, 53, 1771 Pembroke, was fined $25 or 10 days in jail when she appeared in city police court Thursday charged with theft of a "planted" purse August 25 at Hudson's Bay Company.

She had been held in police custody since pleading guilty on Tuesday.

Store detective Harry Mills told court he had laid a purse on a second-floor counter. Mrs. Clifford picked up the purse and entered a washroom, where she left the purse.

She later admitted possession of $10 cash taken from the purse.

Beach Drive Rezoning Postponed by Council

A by-law which would have rezoned the 1500 block Beach Drive for apartment purposes, and which caused a storm of protest early in July, was withdrawn and indefinitely postponed by Oak Bay council Thursday night.

The action followed receipt of a letter from Oak Bay Town Planning Commission recommending that action.

Town Planning Commission had earlier recommended that the rezoning take place. But protests registered prior to and at a subsequent public hearing convinced council that the matter should again be considered by the town planners.

It was pointed out at the hearing that there were a number of vacant apartment sites on the waterfront. The TPC added that following the protests, the applicant, Clarence Moore had also apparently changed his original application.

Friend of Blind On Prairies to Receive Award

A woman who has spent many years helping the blind in Saskatchewan received an award from her contemporaries Thursday.

She is Miss Margaret Leggett, now of Summerland, B.C., who since 1920 has visited remote farm homes in the prairie province where blind persons lived, ministering to their needs, teaching, and being a helpful friends.

She received an "Award of Merit" this evening at the banquet of the Canadian Council of the Blind, in convention here since Monday.

Security Men Name Victorian Vice-President

Distinction of being the first Canadian ever elected as an officer of the National Association of Security Administrators was bestowed Thursday on J. Stewart Smith, of Victoria, superintendent of brokers in B.C.

Mr. Smith was elected second vice-president of the association at the concluding business session of its 38th annual convention in the Empress Hotel. The security administrators are the men who regulate brokers and security dealers in the various provinces and states in Canada and the U.S.

This year's convention was the first ever held outside the United States and was arranged by a committee headed by Mr. Smith. Nearly 400 persons attended and at the wind-up Thursday, retiring president Simon M. Sheldon termed it "an outstanding meeting in the history of our organization."

ROSS PRESIDENT

Herschel K. Ross of Oklahoma, was named president for the forthcoming year. Melvin O. Hall of Connecticut, was elected first vice-president; Hal G. Hoyt of Maine, returned as treasurer, and Joseph M. Shannon, elected secretary.

Unwed Actress Claims Barker Father of Expected Child

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A young unwed actress alleged Thursday that actor Jess Barker, former husband of Susan Hayward, is the father of her expected child.

Yvonne Doughty, actress and model, filed suit in superior court asking that Barker be ordered to support her during her pregnancy, pay hospital and medicals bills and support and educate the child.

Miss Hayward divorced Barker last year after a sensational trial in which she testified that he spanked her and threw her into a swimming pool. Miss Doughty appeared with Marlon Brando in "The Wild One." Barker denied the paternity charges.

TV Quiz Show Labeled Menace

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—A United Church minister said Thursday night "The $64,000 Question," a television quiz program originating in the United States, is a menace and should be abolished.

Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada, said too many people want something for nothing.

"They want money without work," he told a church conference on evangelism. Dr. Mutchmore said gambling stems from "stupidity" and "credulity."

NEW YORK (AP) — Philip Loeb, Philadelphia-born veteran actor and producer of stage, film and television, was found dead Thursday night in his hotel room. Saanich Sells Track Site For Tax Claim Against City

Lake Spoilation Near Sacrilege

Buttle Held Grandest Memorial To War Dead; Nature Best Architect

(Following a recent visit to Buttle Lake, Air Marshal Sir Philip Livingston of Duncan, a native of Vancouver Island, has written a letter to The Times on the current controversy. Sir Philip's interesting comments are being published in three instalments of which the following is the second.)

By AIR MARSHAL SIR PHILIP LIVINGSTON, KBE, CB, AFC, FRCS
Late Medical Director-General, Royal Air Force

Friends sometimes ask me why I came back to this Island on the occasion of my retirement after 32 years of service in the RAF and two years of the Kaiser's War in the RNVR and the younger days at Cambridge and the London Hospital.

The answer is simple. I came back because the call of this Island was clear and compelling.

If a man has any sentiment in him at all, and may he who has not be forgiven, he cannot go through the training and experiences that are part of a full and exacting career in medicine and remain immune from the impact of events that constitute his daily life. It is inevitable that they leave their mark upon him.

If, to all this, are added the sights and sounds encountered during two long wars, a time is reached when men crave for peace; not peace in which to forget, because to forget is impossible, but peace in which to think.

Peaceful Scene Good for the Mind

Hence the help that is afforded by the loveliness of quiet places, in the seclusion of the hills, at a lake's side, or by chattering streams. It is good for the mind.

It is the answer to a prayer.

Just a year ago I rested on the shore of Buttle Lake, where the sand builds up at the mouth of Wolf River. In the high distance was a snow clad peak, while at my feet the waters of the lake lapped quietly.

For a space I was not there in mind: my thoughts were on the chaps who, through their brave endeavors and their sacrifices had gained me my seclusion and my security.

Many, very many of them from Fighter Command and Bomber Command, flew away on their missions by day and by night, never to return. "Day after day, night after night for nearly six years their battle endured," and they were young, very young.

I remember a pilot of the RCAF who lay mortally wounded in one of the RAF hospitals in England that I attended in my special capacity—the front of his chest had been blown away by an enemy cannon shell and his heart lay exposed so that its beating could be seen. For three months he lay there while a chest surgeon of world reputation endeavored to eliminate the infection which had complicated his wound, so that a closure could be attempted.

He lay there a living sacrifice, quietly and uncomplaining.

Died That We Might Live in Freedom

He died that we might live in freedom and in peace.

If, on the shore of Buttle Lake, I retraced these scenes, not in a spirit of sadness but of homage, what then could this have implied, not to me alone, but to us all? Here was a memorial, the grandest that we of this Island possess, a place where each may lay aside his armor and rest—and know that sacrifice and suffering are not in vain, and because the tall trees stand as sentinels guarding his reverie he can feel that his more cherished moments are secure from the world outside.

Of the many memorials, faithful in their design, to the honor of youth no longer by our side, there is one on the Assam-Burma border on which these words are inscribed:

"For your tomorrow we gave our today."

Can there be wonder that I stand in revolt at the sacrifice of a place, the beauty of which soothes the stings of life and invites the soul to dream! Why cannot this be our proud memorial? What better architect than nature for such a purpose?

CROSSWORD NOW $450 —'APED' FOOLED FANS

Times Crossword puzzlers try hard enough and their number grows week by week, but the combination of correct answers continues to elude them. Result, of course, is more cash for the contestant who eventually does win.

Total prize for the puzzle carried this week on page 24 today is $450.

"Aped" was a word that escaped most entrants last week, "aged" being the wrong answer commonly given. "If ——, a man may be a little irritable" was the clue given. Being "aped" is a reasonable cause for irritation. It is mental and physical ill health that causes irritation rather than age.

"Far" proved another stumbling block, the popular answer being "fat."

Explanation to other difficult clues and complete answer to last week's puzzle will be found on page 24.

Ratepayers Fighting Horse Racing Plan Buy Tract at Sale

LEGAL BATTLE LOOMS

A showdown legal fight between Victoria City and Saanich over the controversial Beaver Lake property proposed for a race track site was in the making today when Saanich, in a surprise move, put the 80-acre tract up for tax sale.

It was purchased for $3,450 (the tax claim) by Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association, an organization formed to fight the city's proposal to lease the area for racetrack purposes.

The city, which has held the property for years, has never paid taxes on it and disputes the right of Saanich to collect them.

A city hall spokesman said Victoria will move to have the tax sale set aside. In any event, if the tax sale were held to be legal, the city would have a year in which to redeem the property.

It can do this by paying all back taxes, plus six per cent interest.

Saanich has always claimed that the property is taxable because it is situated within the municipal boundaries.

$700.96 ARREARS

Stan Green, municipal assessor and collector, put the property for tax sale today because taxes have not been paid during the last three years. The tax arrears amount to $700.96.

The successful bid was placed by Fred Jeune, an officer of the ratepayers' association, who said the aim of his organization was still to have the land developed as a park, preferably as a provincial park.

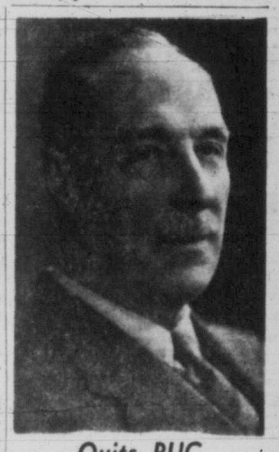
$40,000 OFFER

Saanich council earlier this year offered to purchase the property from the city for $40,000 and to develop it as an inter-municipal park. The city has not yet made a reply to the council's offer.

John Tribe, municipal clerk, said the city will be notified that the land has been sold for arrears in taxes.

"After that it is up to the city," he said. They can either pay it or take the matter to the courts.

The city has held the land under provincial statute since before 1912 as a watershed area. But the city claim under the statute it is not liable for land taxes.



Quits PUC

D. K. Penfold, member of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission, has resigned from office, it was announced by Premier W. A. C. Bennett today. He is to be succeeded by Albert B. Jackson, BA, former superintendent of the motor carrier branch of the PUC, since September, 1953.

Kaiser Asks More Time on Dam Survey

Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation has asked the provincial government for a six to eight-month extension of the deadline for completion of the firm's surveys for the controversial Kaiser Dam.

This was revealed today by Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers, who said the government will agree to the extension.

Mr. Sommers said Kaiser "maintains they can't complete the engineering data required," by the original deadline of Sept. 1.

The new move is the second extension granted Kaiser.

Anti-Red Outbursts Bring Federal Apology

New Demonstrations Against Russians Signal Start of Ontario Farm Tour

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Russia's touring farm experts ran into another anti-Communist outburst Thursday night as cries of "bandits" and "murderers" greeted them at London's Crumlin airport. The chief federal conducting officer, S. J. Chagnon, has made a public apology.

Mr. Chagnon, the assistant deputy agriculture minister, told a press conference he is very embarrassed by what has taken place and on behalf of the Canadian government wants to apologize.

Soviet officials have said privately the Russian government would not have allowed such incidents in the Soviet.

After being hustled in and out of Winnipeg to avoid clashes with anti-Reds, the Russians arrived here about 8.20 p.m. A local "Friends of Russia" group presented Soviet delegation leader Vladimiar Matskevich with a bouquet of flowers at the airport when suddenly the outburst began.

"FLOWERS FOR GRAVES"

"Put the flowers on the Siberian graves of those you have murdered," cried Anton Liepins, a construction worker of Latvian origin.

RCMP, provincial and local police stood guard at Chatham when a chartered bus carrying the nine Russian farm experts stopped briefly and then made its way to the nearby farm of Lawrence Kerr. There were no demonstrations.

Bank Bandit Suspect Caught With $1,600

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 27-year-old ex-convict was arrested by police late Thursday in connection with the Wednesday holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia in which three bandits escaped with $9,000.

The suspect had $1,600 in his possession.

Police were still combing the city for the other two members of the fast-working team which held the staff of the bank and several customers at gunpoint, then fled with their loot in a two-minute operation.

All three were unmasked but two wore false moustaches and one, sunglasses.

The suspect arrested was to face an identification lineup later today.

VANCOUVER (CP) — S. R. Coard, pensioner who lost $100 during a bank holdup here Wednesday, will get it back.

CUTS HOLIDAY, CALLS COUNCIL

'Kickback' Scandal Yarn Rouses Burnaby's Reeve

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charges by the Toronto tabloid Flash that department of works officials have been taking "kickbacks" in hiring equipment were scheduled to be discussed today by the municipal council of Burnaby.

Reeve Charles MacSorley said today he had cut short his vacation to call the meeting when the current edition of Flash came out with a headline account of what it termed:

"The smelliest municipal mess ever to be dragged into the open."

The tabloid story said that two municipal employees through the laxity of elected municipal officials, had in company with the head of a large construction firm, swindled taxpayers out of thousands of dollars through padded payrolls for men and equipment.

Reeve MacSorley said today charges by disgruntled equipment operators that "kickbacks" had been taken by municipal employees had been checked by independent auditors and found to be without foundation.

Woman Jailed 6 Years In Drug Crackdown

VANCOUVER (CP) — First sentence in connection with the current police court hearings involving 32 suspects rounded up Aug. 9 was given Thursday to a 22-year-old Vancouver housewife.

Patricia Bagstad was sentenced to six years in prison by Magistrate Thomas Dohm after she pleaded guilty to eight charges of trafficking in narcotics.

It was her second conviction on a trafficking charge. In 1952 she was sentenced to two years for selling narcotics to juveniles.

Also convicted for the second time on a similar charge was self-confessed addict John Madden, 35, a transient, who was sentenced to three years in 1950 after selling drugs to an RCMP undercover agent. He will be sentenced Sept. 6.

Acquitted on a charge of selling a substance purporting to be narcotics was Walter James Glover, 36, of no fixed address. He was charged with selling a match-stick wrapped in silver paper and presented as narcotics.

Bagstad admitted selling single capsules of narcotics by herself five times, and three times with other persons.

Purchases were made by rookie city policeman Ken Scherling and Bob Devente, who worked four months as undercover agents in the Vancouver drug underworld.

They gathered evidence against 32 persons, 25 charged with trafficking in drugs and seven as conspiring to traffic in drugs.

Police Prober Calls Halt to Next Thursday

VANCOUVER (CP)—A surprise adjournment today ended the R. H. Tupper royal commission until next Thursday amid reports that the hearings had forced Vancouver gamblers into hiding.

Thursday the clock will be turned back eight years as the inquiry into all phases of police activity moves to city hall.

There it will sit in the same chambers used in 1947 for a police inquiry which ended with 10 officers dismissed and six demoted.

In announcing the adjournment, Mr. Tupper said "proper personal reasons" had been given by T. G. Norris, counsel for Police Chief Walter Mulligan. Also, he said, his counsel was awaiting "RCMP reports on work done" since the commission began sitting in mid-July.

A special squad of RCMP officers has been investigating the criminal aspect surrounding evidence given during the lengthy hearings, with a view to possible criminal charges.

BAD FOR MORALE

As the hearings adjourned, a court official said a list of bookmakers, read out late last month during proceedings, had forced Vancouver gamblers underground, complicating the work of the RCMP team.

Mr. Tupper said he disliked adjourning the hearings again, but said "all proper speed will be employed."

He termed the sessions "a distasteful duty—bad for police force morale."

"But is is essential that this is a very thorough inquiry—all allegations must be investigated.

"We realize the need for prompt dispatch."
